Senior citizen death pills by end of century?

LONDON (AP) — A British doctor has stirred up a national controversy with a prediction that a "death pill" for old people will be available and perhaps obligatory by the end of the century.

"Society's view of life will change from the sentimental to the calculated and sophisticated and the overriding policy will be survival of the fittest," wrote Dr. John Goundry in this week's edition of the magazine "Pulse" for British physicians.

Goundry is a general practitioner who says he has quite a few elderly patients.

Marion Green, an official of the National Federation of Old Persons' Associations, said: "The sick and infirm need looking after, not killing off. I hope this pill comes to him some day."

David Hobman, director of Help the Aged, said Goundry "seems totally inconsistent with the Hippocratic oath. He sounds neither humane, nor sensible, nor civilized."

But the 45-year-old physician wrote that he finds it sinister that "we now have a science which stops people being born, and the meddlesome science of geriatrics which stops us dying ... the crime of geriatrics is not its existence or its motives but its failure to realize that death cannot be avoided."

Goundry, from Braintree, near London, said hundreds of British hospitals have been taken over to house the aged sick and that hotels which once served the rich now house the old.

"The economics are devastating," he wrote, "and the standard of care is rapidly falling."

He claimed the problem of geriatric medicine is vast "and is more dangerous than nuclear war; indeed, perhaps only a nuclear war will resolve it."

Goundry said he believes doctors should be able to give a "demise pill" to old people if they ask for it "but in the end I can see the state taking over and insisting on euthanasia."

Giles Ecclestone, secretary of the Board for Social Responsibility, protested Goundry's stand and said, "Old age is not a disease. This idea is absolutely wrong."

Goundry, a father of three, told an interviewer he expects his article to upset a lot of elderly persons, including some of his own patients, but felt it would be accepted by younger people as naturally as they now accept the birth control pill.

He said he has chosen a place in England's pastoral lake country, "and when my own time comes I shall go there to die. When I cannot usefully carry on I shall euthanase myself."

FBI nabs 'most wanted' fugitive

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The FBI today nabbed one of its 10 most wanted fugitives.

Robert Gerald Davis, 29, went peacefully with FBI agents who appeared at his Venice apartment at 3:45 a.m., said Robert E. Gebhardt, head of the FBI's Los Angeles office.

Davis was named to the list after allegedly shooting a 13-year-old boy to death during a 1974 grocery store robbery in Camden, N.J., the FBI reported.

Davis, who is being held in Los Angeles County Jail, was scheduled to be arraigned today before a U.S. Magistrate for his alleged unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, Gebhardt said.

Carter signs youth employment bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, calling youth unemployment "a serious affliction on our American democracy," today signed legislation to put 200,000 young people to work.

The $1 billion program he signed into law includes park and forestry jobs like those in the depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps. Carter put his name on the bill with two green pens at a ceremony in the White House Rose Garden.

The legislation is the last part of the President's economic stimulus package. Carter said an additional 1,000 public service jobs are being contracted for each week and Americans are getting a tax cut under parts of the program already in effect.

The youth employment program includes job training and is also aimed at cutting the rate of high school dropouts. Carter said the program would encourage young people who lose self-esteem because they can't find work and subsequently "lash out against authority."

"This program will single out young people and give them a chance in life," the President said.

It was the third time this week Carter sat at a small brown table on the Rose Garden lawn to sign legislation. On Wednesday, he put his signature on strip mining control legislation. Thursday he signed into being the Department of Energy.

"I think this is a good week for my administration, for Congress and for the whole nation," he declared.

Carter praised members of Congress, particularly Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky. Williams and Perkins are the chairmen of key committees that handled the youth jobs bill.

Jobless rate below 7%

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate fell to 6.9 per cent in July, resuming its downward course after rising the previous month, the government reported today.

Unemployment had risen from 6.9 per cent in May to 7.1 per cent in June after declining from a 1976 high of 8 per cent last November.

Labor Department analysists said that with the rate hovering close to the 7 per cent level for the past several months, the growth in the economy appears to have slowed temporarily following the sharp expansion earlier this year.

Some economists were expecting another rise in the jobless rate last month, but a sharp decline in the civilian labor force brought the rate down in July.

Civilian labor force, which includes those working and looking for work, declined by 340,000 last month with nearly all of the reduction occurring among teen-agers. The government said it was likely that the reduction in the labor force was due to the lateness of the survey week when the July figures were gathered.

"Thus, some youths who otherwise would have been recorded as July entrants were counted in June," the government said.

There was little growth in the number of Americans with jobs last month, as total employement, at 90.6 million, was little changed from June after advancing for eight consecutive months.

Over the past year employment had grown by 2.8 million, with a 2.9 million increase in nonagricultural industries and a 140,000 decline in agriculture.

With the jobless rate falling back to 6.9 per cent last month, the total number of unemployed declined by 220,000 to 6.7 million.

Most of the drop occurred among teen-agers and adult women.

The Labor Department said the teen-age jobless rate fell from 18.6 per cent to 17.4 per cent last month, its lowest point since October, 1974. However it was only white youths that benefited, as the rate for black teen-agers remained "extremely high" at 40.7 per cent, the government said.

Water supply cited for emergency move

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

La Verne, concerned about running out of water, passed an urgency ordinance cutting off building permits to all construction within the city, effective tonight.

Ninety-eight homes, which would have been caught short by the emergency regulation, got in under the wire this morning.

The ordinance was brought on by the unprecedented growth of the city during the past year. It calls for a four month freeze on building — both commercial and residential — to enable the city to take stock of its ability to provide water to more customers.

The urgency law was passed Thursday night at a special meeting.

While City Manager George Caswell insisted that "this may not be an emergency, we are basically trying to prevent one," Mayor Mike Morales disagreed.

"This is an emergency meeting," he declared. "And we have an emergency, whether we like it or not."

The meeting was triggered by a letter from Kenneth I. Mullen, the city's water consultant, advising the council that in view of the accelerated growth of the city, "We believe the water system cannot adequately serve additional homes without the construction of additional pumping and storage facilities."

In a guide for growth 18 months ago, the council had estimated that 2,000 new homes would be built in La Verne during the next five years.

With nearly 1,200 building permits already approved, and well over another 1,000 homes sites being prepared mostly in La Verne Heights, Caswell said the staff had decided to bring the water problem before the council.

According to Mullen, North La Verne right now is serving just about as many customers as it can. Any more homes would be a drain on the water system. He said at least two new reservoirs would have to be built to bring adequate water to that area, and an entirely new system might have to be built to bring water to new residents north of Golden Hills Road in Mountain Springs Estates.

He told the council it would take him about four months to make a survey and update the present system.

Most of the council appeared miffed at the staff for waiting until now to present the problem.

"This should have emerged gradually, not all at once," Councilman Melvin Belcher declared. "Obviously we haven't done our homework."

Councilman Frank Johnson said the city finds itself at least a year ahead of its estimate. But he cautioned his colleagues to be "flexible" to those areas in which there is adequate water and not shut down growth where it wasn't necessary.

But Councilman Robert Neher felt that unless the staff is allowed uninterrupted time to take stock of what it had and what it needed, "we may have to face the same situation downtown. I feel the whole thing must be re-evaluated. I think we should give staff enough time to really do a job."

But there were indications that although the freeze may be lifted in the noncritical areas rather quickly, other areas, particularly the north side, may remain under a moratorium for a long time.

Mullen said after the survey is completed, it may take another 18 months to build the necessary facilities.

"Right now, there is simply nothing above Mountain Springs Estates," he declared. "And yet there are a number of developers who want to build there."

Three developers who said they had intended to file for building permits this morning were exempted from the freeze because their subdivisions were not in critical areas. Mullens said the 98 homes there would have enough water.

At Neher's suggestion, the council instructed Caswell to extend the four-month study to include other areas of concern, such as sewerage, traffic flow, drainage, park maintenance, and city services.

Automakers get pollution reprieve

WASHINGTON (AP) — The auto industry is awaiting President Carter's signature on legislation automakers say is necessary to begin building 1978-model cars.

Congress took final action Thursday night on a bill giving Detroit a new delay in meeting tough new auto exhaust standards. It is the fourth such postponement automakers have received.

President Carter, who urged Congress to enact the extension, is expected to sign the bill.

U.S. should do more against Rhodesia: Nyerere

WASHINGTON (AP) — Winding up talks with President Carter, Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere said he is encouraged by the new administration's hardline approach toward ending white rule in southern Africa.

But, Nyerere told reporters before his final call at the White House, he thinks there is more that the United States can do.

He said the best that can be hoped for now is that a combination of military and diplomatic pressure will help to shorten the war in Rhodesia. "If you can persuade your country to give me arms, I'll take them," Nyerere said.

He said he looked upon the British-American initiative to achieve a transition to black rule in Rhodesia as simply part of the over-all effort. Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith "cannot be argued into accepting majority rule," Nyerere said.

He said the Carter administration could do more to "plug the leakage" which he said has occurred in the United Nations trade embargo against Rhodesia. "Your country has the ability to seal these leakages," he said.

On South Africa, he called on the United States to stop using its veto in the United Nations to block anti-South Africa resolutions.

He also denounced U.S. business investments in South Africa.

"When you invest in South Africa, you strengthen South Africa," he said. "When you reap dividends, you are reaping the dividends of apartheid."

Nyerere declined to be pinned down on what he envisions to be the next step in diplomatic efforts to end the Smith rule in Rhodesia.

Nyerere was asked about reports that President Carter planned to ask him to host a meeting at which the presidents of the five, front-line, black-ruled African states would review the proposals of British and American representatives.

"If the British foreign secretary (David Owen) has something interesting to say, we will be very pleased to listen," he said.

But he made it clear that he believes Smith can be defeated without help from the Western democracies.

"We will fight to the end," Nyerere said. "We defeated the Portuguese colonists without assistance from the Western world. We can defeat Smith without assistance from the Western world."

At a White House state dinner Thursday night, Carter said in his toast to Nyerere that if it is possible to "work in concert and to strive for justice and fairness, we might very well bring about a peaceful resolution" to the black-white struggle in southern Africa.

Van Houten trial jury deadlocked three ways

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Leslie 'an Houten trial jury, locked in disagreement, resumes its deliberations for a 24th day today trying to break a three-way impasse blocking a verdict.

The seven women and five men reported Thursday that they were split in three factions — those favoring a first-degree murder conviction, those for second-degree murder and those who would convict the former Charles Manson follower of manslaughter.

Miss Van Houten, being retried for the 1969 Tate-La Bianaca murders, could be released on parole if the verdict is anything less than first-degree.

The jury foreman, Bill Albee, told Superior Court Judge Edward Hinz that the jury is divided 2-3-7 on the three possible verdicts. He did not reveal which verdict is favored by the majority.

Jurors appeared weary and grim as they arrived at a special court session called after they sent word of their deadlock.

Eleven had been deliberating for 23 days. One juror — originally an alternate — joined the panel 10 days ago when a regular juror fell ill.

Albee said the current jury had taken four ballots — the first on Wednesday and the last Thursday morning — with little change.

"The jurors have considered and deliberated all of the evidence and have read and listened to all the court's instructions," Albee said in a note to the judge. But he said jurors felt their decisions probably could not be changed.

However, the judge asked each juror whether a verdict might still be possible. Seven jurors said yes, and five felt it would be impossible.

"Since a substantial number of the jurors felt they could arrive at a verdict, the court orders you to continue your deliberations," Hinz said.

The 27-year-old Miss Van Houten, composed in the courtroom, was described by her attorney, Maxwell Keith, as "anxious and nervous."

Keith said he was pleased to hear of the jury's split. Asked if he would be satisfied with a hung jury, he said, "Worse things could happen."

If the jury is unable to reach a decision, Miss Van Houten could be tried for a third time. She was convicted of first-degree murder and conspiracy along with Manson and two other women in 1971, but was granted a new trial because her attorney died during the first trial.

2 million could get tax refunds

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A ruling by the U.S. Tax Court could mean that as many as 2 million Californians could be due federal income tax refunds for 1975 and 1976, state officials estimate.

The refunds could result from the court's decision that overruled the Internal Revenue Service and permitted deductions for persons whose employers take state disability insurance contributions from their paychecks.

The ruling came in the case of Anthony and Delia Trujillo of Tustin, whose $90 deduction for the payments had been disallowed by the IRS. The IRS now has 90 days to decide whether to appeal.

The program provides weekly checks to persons who are sick or injured.

Firefighters continue to battle 300 blazes in Northern California

By The Associated Press

More than 8,000 men, including nearly 3,500 U.S. Forest Service firefighters from 48 other states, were scattered across Northern California today battling nearly 300 raging timber and brush fires.

About 2,000 men were fighting a 32,000-acre blaze in the Ventana Wilderness of Los Padres National Forest, near Big Sur, according to Debbie Mitchell, California Department of Forestry.

That fire, like nearly all the others, was sparked by lightning storms which plagued the state most of this week.

Three watersheds in the Ventana Wilderness will gather more sediment because of the fire, Miss Mitchell said, increasing water problems for areas of California already suffering limitations from the two-year drought.

Water sheds, which should receive three times the normal amount of sediment because of the fire, include Carmel, serving 20,000 people in the Carmel Valley; Big Sur, primarily a recreational water shed; and Arroyo Seco, serving agriculture in the Salinas Valley.

Water use will be impaired to users of all three water sheds, Miss Mitchell said.

The fire also was threatening structures at the small community of Tassajara Hot Springs, evacuated earlier this week, and a forest ranger station at Chews Ridge.

The fire was more than 20 miles long, according to Brian Barrette, CDF.

"It looks like it's going to be going for a while," he said.

The 20,000-acre Scarface fire near Canby in Modoc County was also burning out-of-control, he said.

Other fires in the Modoc-Lassen area in northeastern California included an 8,000-acre blaze near the town of Bieber, the 6,000-acre Pondosa timber fire, a 7,000-acre fire near Mosquito Lake, a 1,600-acre fire near Egg Lake and at least 15 other fires from one to 400 acres in size.

A 3,000-acre timber fire near Eagle Lake was potentially a threat to 50 to 75 homes in the Forest Lakes subidivsion near Susanville, Barrette said.

A 1,500-acre timber fire in the Plumas National Forest was being fought by more than 700 men.

Barrette said the total area involved in all the fires exceeded 100,000 acres.

Firefighters were being aided by 63 air tankers carrying chemical fire retardants, 60 helicopters and more than 200 fire engines.

New S.B. blaze

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — A "potentially dangerous" brush fire in rugged hills eight miles north of Santa Barbara — where a raging blaze burned 256 homes last week — was contained by fire fighters late Thursday after burning to within a quarter-mile of a housing tract.

About 100 fire fighters — half of them pulled off the nearby Lake Cachuma blaze — stayed on the fire lines through the night hoping to bring it under control today, said Santa Barbara County fire spokesman Gary Munsey.

Five supermarket employes in wild chase after gunman

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Five supermarket employes who chased a gunman out of their store wrecked three autos in a wild chase which ended in the arrest of a 38-year-old man.

Officers said the market employes and the fleeing man traded numerous shots as they roared at high speeds through quiet city streets in a six-mile predawn chase Thursday.

One of the store clerks crashed into a utility pole. Another wrecked his car using it as a roadblock. The transmission fell out of a third market employe's car.

After a couple of the pursuing cars were wrecked, a state policeman joined the chase. Finally a city policeman overtook the last two pursuing autos and ran the fleeing man's car off the street in a residential district and arrested him.

Officers said Shelby Mercer, 38, was booked in county jail for investigation of robbery and attempted murder

State briefs

Polanski in plea bargain

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Movie director Roman Polanski, charged with drugging and raping a 13-year-old girl, has agreed to plead either guilty or no contest to one of the charges, thus aborting his imminent trial.

Polanski, 43, had been scheduled to stand trial next Tuesday, the eighth anniversary of the murder of his wife, actress Sharon Tate.

The Los Angeles district attorney's office announced Thursday that a secret plea bargain had been reached through Polanski's attorney. Details were kept secret until a formal hearing is held Monday.

"The parties have agreed on a plea," said a district attorney's spokesman.

"There will be a change of plea as to one of the six counts, if accepted by the judge," said Dep. Dist. Atty. Roger Gunson, who conferred with Polanski's lawyer, Douglas Dalton.

Report on LNG terminals

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The State Energy Commission staff says liquefied natural gas terminals shouldn't be built at Los Angeles Harbor or Oxnard, the two places the utilities favor in order to avert a projected gas crisis.

The report, made at the request of Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, said Thursday the population densities at both places might make LNG terminals too dangerous.

That leaves only Point Conception or some offshore site as the remaining possibilities now being studied. And in both these cases, the prospective builder says the results would be too late to head off a projected severe shortage of natural gas in Southern California in the early 1980s.

'Crawling with commies'

FRESNO (AP) — Jimmy Carter is wrong on every major issue. Nebraska is a state "crawling with commies." The United States can expect a violent racial war within the next five years.

Those are some of the thoughts the Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan had for reporters when he arrived here Wednesday to organize the Invisible Empire's burgeoning California membership.

Bill Wilkinson, 34, an electrical contractor from Denham Springs, La., plans to meet with leaders of local Klan lodges throughout the state and preside at a cross burning Saturday night.

The California visit is Wilkinson's first since January, 1976, but the top man in the secret society said west coast membership has increased dramatically since then and needs coordination.

However, he would not disclose membership figures, either nationally or in California, nor would he say how many lodges exist in the state.

Brown on explosive bullet

PASADENA (AP) — A new explosive bullet that can render a policeman's bullet-proof vest ineffective should be outlawed, Gov. Edmund G. Brown says.

Brown displayed the bullet at a news conference Thursday, when he also signed an executive order to to set up police-community crime resistance programs throughout the state.

The programs will be started through federal seed money administered by the California Council on Criminal Justice. The chairman of that council, Santa Ana Police Chief Ray Davis, brought the bullet to Brown's attention.

"It will go halfway through the Los Angeles yellow pages and then explode," Davis said. "It won't penetrate a standard bullet-proof vest of the type that a policeman would wear. But it will force the vest an inch and a half into a substance similar to a body, thus rendering the vest ineffective."

Brown said he would have legislation introduced to outlaw the new bullets.

Younger to write Carter

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger says he will tell President Carter that he is "wrong in his facts and conclusions" in recommending the decriminalism of marijuana use in federal law.

The Republican contender for governor said Thursday he had drafted a letter to the President disputing Carter's statement that there was no significant increase in marijuana use in California since the state cut marijuana possession penalties last year.

Younger said a Field Research Corp. poll conducted for the state found a 50 per cent increase in marijuana use between February 1975 and November 1976.

The maximum penalty for possession of an ounce or less of pot in California was reduced to a $100 fine on Jan. 1, 1976.

The report said the percentage of adults who described themselves as regular users had increased from 9 to 14 per cent during the 21-month period.

Hermaphrodite discovered

BISHOP (AP) — A hermaphrodite has been discovered among 50 wild burros rounded up in a federal environmental program south of here in the Saline Valley, officials report.

The animal with organs of both sexes is believed to be the only such burro in captivity, according to Ben Collins, manager of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management office here.

After discovering the burro's special features, federal officials nicknamed it "Hermy" and sent it to the University of California at Davis for an examination by veterinarian Jeff Davidson.

"Except for the sex organs it appears to be a normal burro," said Davidson, a specialist in large animals.

He planned to have blood and chromosome tests taken on the burro in the university's reproduction department.

Hermy was rounded up this week with six females and 43 males by land management agents coordinating the federal "Adopt A Burro" program.

The animals are descendants of burros brought to the Saline Valley in the 1800's when the area's mining industry first developed.

In recent years they have eaten too much plant life and disrupted the ecological balance of the desert area, so officials are offering them to the public as pets.

Hermy is unavailable.

Wencke decides to testify

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Rancho Sante Fe attorney and businessman Walter Wencke is out of jail after deciding to "swallow my feeling" and testify in federal court.

Wencke, 53, was ordered jailed Wednesday for contempt by U. S. District Court Judge Gordon Thompson Jr. after Wencke refused to be sworn to testify in a civil case.

Wencke, however, remained stubborn during his appearance Thursday, taking the Fifth Amendment 18 times after finally agreeing to at least take the oath and give his name and address to eliminate the contempt ruling.

Wencke answered but two of the questions put to him by Ernest Kaufman, attorney for the Securities and Exchange Commission — his name and address.

Wencke, who once headed several corporations, is among 30 persons named in an SEC complaint filed last summer accusing the defendants of directing and controlling a scheme to defraud public investors in securities of publicly owned firms.

Congressmen ask probe

The case of the missing nuclear fuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of both houses of Congress are calling for investigations following a government report that nuclear fuel plants cannot account for thousands of pounds of weapons-grade nuclear material.

Officials of two federal agencies, releasing previously classified information, on Thursday conceded that the plants are unable to trace 8,437 pounds of uranium and plutonium that has disappeared since World War II.

The missing uranium and plutonium was part of the government's supply of nuclear material to be used for construction of atomic weapons. But federal officials insisted there is no evidence of theft of the materials or of a black market.

One official said the amount of material missing from government plants or private facilities under federal contract was sufficient to construct hundreds of atomic bombs.

Despite concern expressed in the past that a terrorist group might be able to assemble enough nuclear material to construct a bomb, government officials labeled the disappearances "inventory differences" and "materials unaccounted for," which the government refers to as "MUFs."

Even with the assurances of the federal agencies that there is no evidence of theft or a black market involved in the unaccounted for materials, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., has announced plans for a House subcommittee inquiry into the missing atomic material and Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, is planning Senate hearings.

Dingell said he would seek testimony beginning Monday from officials of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Energy Research and Development Administration and National Security Council.

A spokesman for Glenn said the senator was likely to call subcommittee hearings next month, after Congress returns from a recess.

Glenn said he was especially interested in learning about the 381 pounds of plutonium reported unaccounted for at a single plant at Apollo, Pa., before 1965.

ERDA and the NRC said the 8,437 pounds of nuclear materials unaccounted for include about 3,400 pounds of plutonium and slightly over 5,000 pounds of highly enriched uranium. One NRC official said it requires about 20 pounds of plutonium or 40 pounds of highly enriched uranium to construct a single atomic bomb.

House near vote on energy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House stayed close to its own timetable and White House wishes for finishing work today on President Carter's national energy program.

On the way to final passage, Democrats brushed aside a Republican move to apply crude oil tax revenues to reducing tax bills next year. The vote was 232 to 175.

Carter would rebate the tax revenues to heating oil users and to Americans in every income category, regardless of whether they pay taxes next year. The average estimated rebate would be about $22.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said the presidential program was a strong one, and deputy House Whip Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said, "this is the strongest bill the administration could have expected."

With House leaders hoping to complete work on the bill before Congress begins its August recess today, the main votes remaining are on a Republican effort to junk the President's energy plan in favor of their own.

Meanwhile, James Schlesinger, Carter's nominee to head the new Department of Energy, was scheduled to be sworn in today in a White House ceremony.

Schlesinger won Senate confirmation in the post on Thursday, hours after Carter signed legislation setting up the first new Cabinet department in 11 years.

In debate Thursday, lawmakers handed the President one of his few setbacks on the bill, rejecting a plan he supported to hike the federal gasoline tax by a nickel a gallon. The vote was 339-82 against increasing the current tax of four cents a gallon.

A proposed tax hike of four cents also was defeated, 370-52.

The House took these other actions:

—Rejected by voice vote a proposed four-cent increase to 11 cents in the tax on gasoline for private aircraft.

—Killed, 226-190, a proposal to earmark crude oil tax revenues for support of Social Security benefit payments.

—Voted, 223-198, against a proposed return, or "plowback," of some of the tax revenue to certain oil companies as an incentive for exploration.

Vance in Jordan after peace setback in Syria

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, his Middle East peace mission set back by Syria's rejection of a U.S.-based meeting of Mideast foreign ministers, pledged today to build the "necessary consensus" for an Arab-Israeli settlement.

Arriving in Jordan for talks with King Hussein, Vance said the search for a "just and lasting peace remains at the top of the list in terms of our foreign policy priorities in the United States."

Vance flew in from Damascus, where President Hafez Assad turned down an Egyptian-American proposal for a conference of foreign ministers in the United States by the end of the year.

After meeting with Vance Thursday, Assad said it was "better to concentrate at this stage" on preparations for resuming the Mideast peace conference in Geneva where the "essential rights" of the Palestinians should be affirmed.

The proposed ministerial meeting would exclude the Palestinians.

The proposal had been the one solid result to surface from Vance's latest tour of Middle East capitals. U.S. officials privately claimed other negotiating accomplishments but refused to elaborate.

Boy, 8, accidentally shot by brother, 9

An 8-year-old Ontario boy was listed in critical condition this morning at Ontario Community Hospital with gunshot wounds suffered Thursday morning when his brother accidentally shot him with a shotgun at their home at 326 W. G St., Ontario.

Police said the boy, Sonny Chavez, suffered 12-gauge shotgun pellet wounds of the stomach and legs in the accident.

Officers learned that the boy was playing with his 9-year-old brother, Daniel, in their home about 11:10 a.m. when the mishap occurred.

According to the boy's sister, the younger boy was playing with a BB gun when his brother walked into his parents bedroom and retrieved a loaded 12-gauge shotgun.

The older brother ran out of the bedroom with the shotgun, crouched behind a sofa and pointed the weapon at his younger brother. The younger boy was pointing the BB gun at the other boy when the shotgun went off.

Police said Daniel kept crying, "I didn't know it was loaded. I didn't know it was loaded."

Police said the boys were left in care of their teen-age sister who was watching television while the parents were away and was unaware the boys were playing with the weapons.

3 teen-agers accost youths; take piggy bank

Four teen-agers were forced to lie on the floor while their attackers ransacked a house at on N. Glen Way, and fled with a piggy bank containing $4 and a clock radio Thursday night, Pomona police reported.

Sought in the holdup and burglary are three youths, all about 16 years old. One was described as being 5 feet 11, 140 pounds, wearing a black flop hat over a short Afro, and having a thin mustache.

The second is 5 feet 8, 145 pounds, and wearing a dark knit cap. The third is 5 feet 4, 125 pounds, having a light mustache, and wearing a flop hat. All are black.

One victim, 16, told officers he answered a door bell ring about 10:45 p.m. Thursday, and saw through a screen door three teen-agers who asked if he had any Angel dust or Columbian for sale.

The victim said he was curious and went outside to talk to the trio for about three minutes before one of the other victims said there was a phone call for him.

The three teen-agers entered the house and after using the bathroom, one pulled a gun from his waistband and said, "This is a robbery. Get down. Get down."

The victim said he was slow in responding to the order, and was slugged in the face by one of the trio.

While the victims were lying on the floor, the trio ransacked the house apparently in search of money and jewelry.

The trio fled with a plaster piggy bank containing about $4 and an AM-FM clock radio valued at $30.

Deputies see shooting; 3 juveniles held

Two off-duty Industry sheriff's deputies are credited today with saving the life of a 30-year-old man who was shot twice in a La Puente liquor store parking lot about 1 a.m. by three juveniles.

Deputies Terry Mace, 32, and Tony Papa, 30, had just finished their shift and were driving home when they discovered the shooting in progress at Dean and Jay's Liquor Store, 15454 Amar Road, La Puente.

The victim, Steven Lehrbach, 30, of Pinion Hills, was taken to County-USC Medical Center where he is listed in stable condition.

Lehrbach was shot in the left hip and lower stomach.

The juveniles are being held at Industry substation on charges of assault with intent to commit murder. No reasons were given for the shooting.

Thieves steal TV sets, air conditioner

Burglars kicked and smashed in the windows of the Goodyear Tire Store, 12512 Central Ave., Chino, early this morning and stole 10 television sets and one air conditioner worth several thousand dollars, Chino police reported.

The thieves loaded the items into an unknown vehicle and sped away just prior to the arrival of police responding to a burglar alarm tripped by the burglars about 6:20 a.m.

Instant success in acting debut

Scene-stealing rabbit missing

A mustachioed rabbit "who stole the show" in July during a La Verne College children's play has been stolen from his owner's yard in La Verne, police reported.

"Moustachio," eight weeks old, white with black spots, five inches high and one foot long, made his acting debut this summer as a cat in a children's production for children. He became an instant scene-stealer as he popped out of the lead actor's hat.

Someone in the cast aided Moustachio in his acting debut by mewing like a cat when it was the rabbit's turn to read some lines.

Eleven-year-old Ted Wilson, Moustachio's owner, described the rabbit as stage-trained and worth about $300.

Wilson told police he doesn't suspect any one in the cast of the McQuicker Stage Co., even though a few actors might have become jealous of Moustachio's instant success.

Wilson said that if Moustachio isn't found by September when the play opens on tour, he will have to recruit an understudy.

La Verne Police Lt. Dee Griggs meanwhile asked for public support in searching for Moustachio and an unidentified three-week-old rabbit also taken.

Could it be that Moustachio, flush with success, had gone out on his own to further his acting career?

Some states still providing abortions

Poor woman in more than half the states in the country now are going to be unable to get government money for abortions.

But, despite an adverse Supreme Court decision, victories achieved by anti-abortion movements in a host of state capitals, and a cutoff of federal funds, there probably will be a few places where such publicly funded abortions will remain available.

The nation's capital may be one such place.

Over the last week, the Associated Press asked officials across the country what they planned to do if federal officials halted use of federal Medicaid funds for elective abortions — a cutoff which Congress had ordered and which the Carter adminstration started enforcing on Thursday.

In nine states, the cutoff will end programs for funding nontherapeutic abortions. That will bring to 26 the total number of states in which such aid for most abortions will be unavailable.

In another 17 states, officials are unsure what they will do.

But in several of those, inluding Alabama and Nebraska, a cutoff of funding for elective abortions was being seriously considered even before the federal ban.

Only in seven states — Alaska, Hawaii, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nevada, Oregon and Washington — are officials saying they will probably continue such programs without federal assistance. Even in Massachusetts, a legislative fight now being waged over a bill to ban publicly funded elective abortions could change that.

In the District of Columbia, meanwhile, officials have said they will look for alternate sources of funds when no federal money is available. In 1975, the last year for which figures are available, there were 7,400 Medicaid abortions in the nation's capital.

On Thursday, with the last legal obstacle cleared by a court decision in New York, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare moved to cut off federal funds for abortions not needed to save a woman's life.

Such a ban had been ordered by Congress last year in an amendment to an appropriations bill, but enforcing the ban had been held up by court orders issued by U.S. District Court Judge John F. Dooling Jr. in New York.

Last month, after the Supreme Court ruled that states were free to decide whether they wanted to use Medicaid funds for nontherapeutic abortions, it also told Dooling to reconsider his decision on the socalled Hyde Amendment.

And on Thursday, when Dooling lifted his order preventing enforcement, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. was ready with a prepared statement saying he would put the amendment into effect.

Califano, who personally opposes abortion, made this announcement:

"The department will provide federal financial participation in the cost of abortions only where the attending physician, on the basis of his or her professional judgment, has certified that the abortion is necessary because the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

Califano said victims of rape or incest who receive pregnancy-preventing treatment before they know whether they are pregnant will not be affected by the announcement.

Nor will the government stop financing treatment of ectopic pregnancies, in which the fertilized egg develops outside the uterus and cannot grow to term, he said.

The two states with the largest numbers of Medicaid abortions, New York and California, had not decided by Thursday what they would do in the event of a federal cutoff.

But in both states, continuation of the programs is considered at least a possibility in light of recent statements by both governors.

Hypertension

High blood pressure, or hypertension, is not the same thing as nervous tension, says the National High Blood Pressure Education Program. Calm, easy-going people can have high blood pressure.

Displays will be on view during the 50th Los Angeles County Fair Sept. 16 through Oct. 2.

Mother-Daughter Look-Alike

The Los Angeles County Fair is seeking contestants for its annual Mother-Daughter Look-Alike contest.

Entries are being accepted for the fun event scheduled Thursday, Sept. 22 at 5 p.m. Contestants must check in behind the amphitheatre stage by 4:30 p.m. for registration and entry number.

There is no age limit, but various categories are established on the age of the daughter alone. Judging will be on the basis of looks, walk, mannerisms and dress.

Entry blanks may be received by writing to the Special Events Dept., Los Angeles County Fair, P.O. Box 2250, Pomona 91766. Two complimentary admission credentials will be issued with each entry.

The fair Sept. 16 through Oct. 2 will celebrate its 50th year with a "Salute to the Golden West" theme.

For the first time, the show will have three classes of hackney horses. The state champion saddlebred weanling, yearling, two and three-year old, and the California Champion Saddlebred Three-gaited Pleasure Horse will be selected.

Directors, officials and exhibitors will enjoy an annual party Sept. 16 after the show. Dr. Daniel Felix Smith of Pomona is chairman of the buffet dinner at Orlando's.

A Sunday afternoon feature is the Parade of Stallions.

Bulk milk producers

A total of 242 Southland bulk milk producers have entered the competition at the 50th Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona Sept. 16 through Oct. 2.

Joe Coehlo and Sons of Ontario won the top honors in the competition in 1976. A runner-up trophy went to Moons Dairy, Chino, in the more than 14,000 pounds of milk shipped daily.

A near-record 112 gold medals were awarded in the competition open to all milk producers who ship to plants in Los Angeles County.

Grade school stockbrokers annoyed at blackout

CHULA VISTA (AP)— When the lights went out in New York City, fourth and fifth graders at Cook School felt annoyed. And some lost money.

"The stock exchanges went black and the kids were complaining about losing money because they couldn't buy and sell," said their teacher, Janet Abbott.

The walls of her classroom are covered with newspapers— some new and others old.

Pages showing the daily news events are paired with pages showing the stock market's reaction to national and world happenings.

Ms. Abbott, who prefers the feminist designation, is a curriculum coordinator for the Chula Vista City School District in suburban San Diego. She is back in the classroom this summer teaching a special math class on the stock market.

She said the project includes allowing the youngsters to make imaginary stock purchases with hand-manufactured money.

The children, 9 and 10-years-old, have their own stockbrokers in the classroom and pay regular commissions.

Ms. Abbott said the children not only are learning about the stock market, but are becoming proficient at adding and subtracting fractions with relative ease.

"They have to in a class that has formed its own stock-issuing corporations," she said. "The competition is real, and the kids have to be able to handle the daily calculations."

She allows the youngsters to double-check their work with a hand caculator, which she does not regard as cheating, since they first must learn to change decimal readings to their fractional equivalent.

She said the children are quick to unload sagging stock issues.

"They learn the difference between a paper loss or gain and a real one," she said.

The meaning of it all?

She believes the youngsters are picking up more math than in most traditional classes.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPIK(— A drop in the July's jobless rate and a dip in the natio s money supply sent stock higher Friday in fairly actve trading.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained 2.17 points Thursday, was ahead 2.69 points to 890.86 shortly before noon EDT.

Early buying was sparked by the Labor Department's report that unemployment fell to 6.9 per cent in July from 7.1 per cent in June. However, the number of persons employed fell slightly for the first time in nine months.

Jules Shiskin, Labor Department economist, said the figures indicated the economy was slowing down.

Investors also were encouraged by the Federal Reserve Board's report late Thursday that the nation's basic money supply fell $1.5 billion in the latest reporting week following a $5 billion surge the week before.

The Fed tightened credit because of the rise aweek ago. Thursday's figures showed the growth rate still was higher than Fed targets.

Nevertheless, advances led declines, 715 to 363, among the 1,602 issues crossing the tape. The 524 unchanged issues reflected investor uncertainty.

EW York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 8,800,000 shares, compared with 7,260,000 traded during the same period Thursday.

Times Mirror was the most active NYSE issue, off ¼ to 24. Middle South Utilities was the second most active, off ¼ to 16¾ following a block trade of 155,000 shares at 16¾.

Sears, Roebuck, which gained ⅝ Thursday, was the third most active issue, up ¼ to 30. The company Thursday reported a 21.7 per cent hike in July sales, the best monthly advance in 20 years.

General Dynamics, a 1½point winner Thursday, was ahead ⅝. The firm late Thursday reported that its second quarter earnings rose to $2.71 a share from $2.66 a year ago.

Prices were higher in active trading of American Stock Exchange issues. Syntex was the most active issue, up ¼ to 18⅛. Tubos de Acero followed, up ⅜ to 3⅝. Cavitron was third, up 1 to 17j3. cavitron officials said they knew of no reason for the activiy in their stock.

Wencke sent to jail

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Lawyer-financier Walter Wencke, a one-time candidate for Congress, was sent to jail Wednesday after a judge found him in contempt for refusing to answer questions from the Securities & Exchange Commission.

"All persons, rich or poor, coming before this court must recognize the court's authority to require them to take the stand and testify," U.S. District Court Judge Gordon Thompson Jr. said in refusing to grant Wencke bail.

Wencke, 53, of Ranco Santa Fe must remain in Metropolitan Correctional Center until he submits to interogation by SEC attorneys or bail is granted by an appellate court.

ROY ANDERSON

Lockheed selects new boss

BURBANK (AP) — Roy A. Anderson, who has been with Lockheed Aircraft Corp. for 21 years, will be taking over the firm's top reins when Chairman and Chief Executive Robert Haack bows out in September.

The promotion was announced by the company's board of directors Tuesday, and will take effect after Lockheed's annual meeting, scheduled for Sept. 29.

Anderson's appontment was made Monday in a board meeting, Haack said. The choice had earlier been narrowed down to Anderson and three outsiders.

Anderson, currently vice chairman and chief financial and administrative officer, has filled key positions at two of Lockheed's three primary operating companies, as well as in the corporate organization.

The 56-year-old executive has been assistant treasurer, vice president and controller. He also has been a member of the board of directors since 1971. He was named vice chairman, a position that will now be eliminated, in 1975.

Haack, a former New York Stock Exchange president, took over as Lockheed chairman on an interim basis in February 1976. He said he would remain in that capacity until the firm's annual meeting and will also stand for reelection as a director at the meeting.

Audit shows corporation vindicated

BURBANK (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. says an audit of company records shows it did not charge the federal government for $10.2 million worth of steel it never used.

"An audit of 28,000 purchase and related documents...conclusively vindicates our position and negates theirs," Lockheed Chairman Robert W. Haack said Monday of the federal Renegotiation Board, which investigates cost overruns in defense and space contracts.

Goodwin Chase, chairman of the Renegotiation Board, last month reported to a Senate committee that Lockheed had overbilled the government for 73 million pounds of steel for seven amphibious transport dock ships.

After further investigation, he raised the figure to 117 million pounds.

The seven ships, which contain 12 to 14 million pounds of steel each, were commissioned between October 1968 and July 1971.

Lockheed claims that 130 million pounds of steel was billed to the Navy and used in building the hulls, manufacturing jigs and fixtures. The rest was scrap.

Lockeed claims the hulls alone weighed 90 million pounds, Lockheed said.

The ships were built in 1971 by Lockheed Shipbuilding & Construction Co., Seattle, a division of the Burbank-based corporation.

Lesson for professionals

Amateur investors not so amateurish

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — What heresy it was for the National Association of Investment Clubs to suggest that short-term Federal Reserve policy and interest rates need not be a major consideration in making stock market investments.

Such an attitude might be considered naive or even mad by those who are imbued with the latest theology of the street, which might be described as "watch the Fed" and which has as its credo that when rates rise stocks fall.

But the association, which is a relative amateur in the business of picking stocks, began five test portfolios in December 1974 with the attitude that the Fed could only help over the five-year period of the test.

"No fear was felt for interest rate changes in that period since it was assumed the Federal Reserve was managing interest rates for the total benefit of the country and they would work out in our favor," said Thomas O'Hara, NAIC chairman.

It is perhaps this independence of view that has helped various clubs of amateur investors outperform the averages and the professionals. It is a spirit that offers a lesson to any investor who has lost sight of basics.

On July 1, half-way through the five-year period, the poorest performing of the five portfolios showed a gain of 70.2 per cent. The best was up 193.2 per cent, and the others followed at 139.8 per cent, 118 and 78.7 per cent.

While this was being achieved, a lot of professional money managers were nervously watching for hints of change in Fed policy, studying the weekly money supply figures and sometimes making precipitous buy or sell decisions.

In contrast, the test portfolios remained intact, in keeping with the philosophy that one should select companies growing at a rate better than the industry of which they are a part, and then holding on through temporary ups and downs.

Another attitude helped in achieving the remarkable gains, an attitude that small investors might consider in their own approach. It is this: Don't run with the crowd.

Many noninstitutional type stocks were chosen — stocks that sell on their merit rather than because of myth or advisory, or current fad.

Such independence of judgment is a clear departure from the herd instinct of so many investors. Institutions often limit themselves to a favorite 50 or 100 stocks. They trade among themselves. They react to the same interpreations of the market.

In follow-the-leader style, many small investors tend to pattern their decisions after the big investors, perhaps unconsciously, because the big investors are the ones who make price changes and obtain publicity.

No rule is without exceptions, and some of the most illustrious names in American industry are included in the portfolios, companies such as Coca-Cola, Mobil Corp., IBM and the like.

But beside them are Kaneb Services, Trinity Industries, Pako, Moog — smaller companies that, says O'Hara, have qualities of management and performance similar to those of the large, better known concerns.

But there are three basics to which the NAIC and its 5,600 member clubs seek to adhere with as few exceptions as possible:

1. Invest regularly each month. Believe in the stock — hold it rather than trading in and out.
2. Reinvest dividends.
3. Try to select companies growing better than the industry in general.

You couldn't pick a better time to buy...or save!

Plan gives CIA chief control of U.S. intelligence

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's plan for revising the nation's intelligence network will give CIA Director Stansfield Turner over-all responsibility for the entire intelligence community, a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee said Thursday.

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said after members of the committee met with the President that the plan would help meet what the committee sees as a need for more coordination among the intelligence agencies scattered throughout the government.

Garn said "the over-all goal (of Carter's plan) is to coordinate the activities, eliminate any possibility for abuse, and make sure the intelligence product is useable."

One administration source said that Carter, after an administration review of the nation's troubled intelligence agencies, would set up a system to coordinate their activities without letting them become "too powerful or centralized."

The New York Times reported today that Turner would control the entire intelligence budget, including the Defense Department's National Security Agency and the National Reconnaissance Office.

But the newspaper said that senior administration officials contend Turner would not become an "intelligence czar" as other agencies had feared because they could appeal any policy decisions to an interagency Cabinet-level committee of the National Security Council.

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown had opposed Turner's efforts to get full control over the NSA and NRO budgets, which had been under his office and account for nearly three-fourths of the nation's estimated $5 billion intelligence spending.

Under the new program, the Times said, Turner would control the intelligence community's budget, but Brown would retain operational control of NSA and NRO as well as the Defense Intelligence Agency.

Carter's plan was to be revealed this afternoon at the White House.

The source, who asked not to be quoted by name, said the plan would preserve competition among intelligence sources, guaranteeing that decision makers have access to different sources of information that has been well debated within the government.

The plan will reportedly establish a Cabinet-level director of national intelligence. It would also reportedly set up a top-level committee of intelligence users to oversee the policies of of the intelligence gathering agencies.

The plan stems from a National Security Council review begun last spring under the direction of Vice President Walter F. Mondale, who was a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee before he took office.

During the election campaign last year, Carter and Mondale referred frequently to allegations of abuses by the Central Intelligence Agency in the previous two decades, and called for greater control of the CIA and other intelligence agencies by the White House.

The administration source said that despite competition between the Central Intelligence Agency and the Defense Department, "there are no big winners or losers" in the President's plan.

"This is a decision where both the CIA and DD will be happy," he said.

"It will provide greater coordination," he said. "There will be greater consensus without raising concern about intelligence operations becoming too powerful or too centralized."

When the study was getting under way, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter, in his first four months in office, had been "very pleased with the professionalism and competence" he had discovered in the nation's intelligence agencies but that legislation was needed to define "what they may and may not do."

Powell said the President was convinced that he knew what the Central Intelligence Agency was doing and that it was not breaking the law.

But, he said, existing legal statements governing the agency and other intelligence gathering operations were too broad and general and permitted the interpretation that the agencies "can act outside of or above the law."

During the campaign, he frequently criticized the CIA, citing allegations of illegal operations such as coups d'etat and assassination plots.

More recently, the President, speaking on the need for control over the intelligence agencies by those who use their information, said that "in the past the intelligence community, itself, has set its own priorities."

Strong challenge to reassessments

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If the number of reassessed land parcels being challenged by county taxpayers this summer is any indication of homeowners' wrath, then the anger level is high.

Although fewer taxpayers are affected this year compared to last summer, the number of appraised parcels being contested is proportionately higher.

About 170,000 residential properties were reassessed this year, compared to 835,000 last year, but already there have been more than 10,000 appeals filed compared to only 2,595 in the same period last year.

To handle the heavy load, the Board of Supervisors added two more assessment appeals boards to the three exisiting ones. Last year saw half the cases win reductions in property taxes, amounting to $8.7 million.

If the appeals being filed continue at this rate, supervisors expect the total to come close to the 1967 record number of 17,000. Deadline for filing appeals is Sept. 15.

O-M budget calls for 22.5-cent tax hike

School board members come up with split decision, 3-2

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

The news is not good for taxpayers in the Ontario-Montclair School District this year.

School trustees adopted a final budget Thursday night that includes a 22½-cent increase in the tax rate.

The $22.2 million budget for 1977-78 could be considered controversial in view of the fact two board members voted against it. Trustees Sam DiGiovanni and Richard Pearson opposed the fiscal package, while board President Rose Kelber, Kathleen Brugger and William Hennie favored it — resulting in a 3-2 vote.

DiGiovanni repeated the same concerns he has voiced in earlier votes on the tentative and publication budgets. He denounced the tax increase and noted homeowners cannot afford to pay more taxes.

"There is no relief for the taxpayer — he always gets it in the neck," said DiGiovanni. "The tax rate is too high and this is not a good budget to pass. We should be trying to cut the budget."

Pearson echoed DiGiovanni's comments, saying taxpayers are "overburdened. We could possibly make some changes in the budget."

Mrs. Brugger noted, however, that the maximum possible tax rate was not levied last year, "so we're in a bind. We have to pull ourselves out of this."

Pearson said the board does not have to levy the maximum tax rate just because it is permissible.

DiGiovanni said, "Our whole system can be cut down to save taxes. Maybe the place to start is a small organization like this district."

Mrs. Kelber claimed the district budget has "no frills" in it. "We're getting our dollars' worth here."

No citizens spoke for or against the budget during the public hearing held early in the meeting.

Deputy Supt. George Duerr reported the tax increase is necessary to finance increased costs to the district in the coming year. Inflation has been a major cause for the $22,207,938 final budget being $2.2 million higher than last year's plan.

Some big increases are in areas of employe salaries and fringe benefits. Also, some capital improvements are being made that were delayed a year ago.

The tax rate is projected to jump from $2.82 to $3.04 per $100 of assessed valuation.

DiGiovanni has pointed out that the 22½-cent increase will be on top of a 21.54 per cent increase in assessed valuation this year. That means residents will be socked with a higher tax bill even before the school tax rate is levied.

Duerr noted the final tax rate is set by the county Board of Supervisors, so it could change slightly.

And Supt. Jack Jones has noted assessed valuation increases don't mean much to the school district. While local income increases, the district "loses" money from the state because of the Senate Bill 90 formula used to figure revenue.

Possible phone strike wouldn't affect local calls

Last-minute contract talks were resumed today in hopes of avoiding a nationwide strike by 700,000 telephone workers on Sunday.

However, employes of the General Telephone Co., which serves the valley, are not involved.

Negotiations are between the Communications Workers of America (CWA) and the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.'s Bell System.

General's employes are represented by CWA but under a separate, three-year contract which was signed earlier this year. CWA represents approximately 14,000 of General's hourly employes.

Jack King, General Telephone's public information officer in Pomona, said today that while pickets may demonstrate outside the Third Street, east entrance to the General building at Third and Locust streets, they would not be picketing General but rather the office occupied by the Pacific Telephone Co., in the Bell System.

"The long-distance operators are not General but Pacific employes," explained King. So if a strike is called, operators probably will not be present to place long-distance calls. However, direct-distance dialing will not be hampered.

CWA President Glenn E. Watts said Thursday that a strike was almost inevitable." That negotiations were at a standstill and time was running out.

The current contract expires at midnight Saturday.

Then today it was announced that the Bell System was prepared to improve on its original offer.

"I'm sure there is going to be movement in the next few days, because we all know there is not much time left," company spokesman Charles Dynes said today.

"I'm still confident we can come up with an agreement."

He said the company's 200,000 management and supervisory personnel are prepared to maintain service that "would be pretty good for quite a while."

While some of the phone system is highly automated, Watts said a strike would disrupt operator-assisted calls, new installations and the repair of existing equipment.

The unions rejected a company offer July 21 of a new three-year contract with a 10 per cent wage increase, plus cost-of-living adjustments in the final two years of the agreement.

The company said the proposal would have raised the salary of the top-paid craft worker, now earning $333.50 a week, by 18.3 per cent over the life of the contract.

The union has demanded a shorter work year and other "job security" measures to spread the available work.

Watts accused the company of ignoring problems caused by the loss of nearly 100,000 jobs over the last three years to automation and recession.

Solar energy uses discussed at local luncheon

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

Southern California Edison Co. is not going to stick a meter on the sun and start charging for solar energy, the firm's supervisor of solar marketing joked Thursday as he discussed the fascinating subject before the Claremont Kiwanis Club at Griswold's.

Arthur J. Blake reported that solar energy is a viable source for heating water, swimming pools, homes and even for air conditioning.

He said that the Edison Co. is serving as a catalyst for the use of solar energy and to serve as a go-between for business firms and Edison's customers.

Blake cautioned that although solar energy technically will work to air condition homes, it is not economical to do so.

Blake said that solar energy certainly saves fuel, and that the kilowatt per hour use for water heaters may be reduced by as high as 70 per cent in some applications.

He explained that the system works best when the electrically-heated water heater is retained, and solar heated water is used as a backup.

He cautioned that solar heating will not work 100 per cent because of rainy or cloudy weather.

He also cautioned that the cost of heating water may be reduced by only 20 per cent when there are few members in a household and there is no great demand.

The use of solar energy will help cut into the peak demand for electricity, Blake said. "The demand is very critical. During this heat wave we recorded a new all-time peak demand, and solar energy works best at our peak demands during the summer months."

Blake explained that the best application of solar energy is heating swimming pools, and that such use will extend the swimming season.

He said that the next best application is the domestic hot water heater when the cost of installing a solar heater can be paid back in savings in five to eight years.

He said that some properly designed systems only save 20 per cent, and that those might have been oversold.

He cautioned that space heating with solar energy is marginal economically.

"Use of solar energy for space heating works well in areas such as Colorado or New England where there is lots of cold weather," Blake said.

He explained that air conditioning must be done with natural gas where water can be heated up to 190 degrees, and that such a method can be very expensive.

He said that process heating such as in a photo lab or plating lab will work well.

As to swimming pools, Blake explained that a 400-square-foot pool requires 200 square feet of paneling on a 34 per cent slope.

Blake reported that Edison Co. is very concerned about do-it-yourselfers because "it is not simple to balance everything out. Not enough of one type of equipment could cause stagnation problems."

Blake cited Archimedes as one of the first users of solar energy, but said solar heaters are becoming more efficient.

Asked how long before solar heaters become commonplace, he replied, "One to two years."

It was stressed that although the state allows a 10 per cent tax break for installation of solar heating, the user may be stung with an increase in assessed valuation on his property.

Blake displayed various types of solar heating equipment being produced today.

City attorney needs more information on Expo proposal

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The Ontario city attorney will need more specific information on the Expo 81 Corp. proposal for leasing the Ontario Motor Speedway before final determination can be made on the merits of the proposal.

Sam Crowe, who serves as legal counsel to both the Ontario City Council and the Ontario Motor Speedway non-profit corporation, said Thursday it is difficult to assess the proposal developed by Bear, Stearns and Co. for Expo 81 Corp. in its present form.

Recently, Expo 81 Corp. hired the New York consultants to develop a new proposal calling for lease of the speedway site rather than purchase, and to draw up the details of an umbrella financing plan to fund the international exposition.

Bear, Stearns and Co. have suggested the speedway site be leased for $12 million and that a revenue bond issue, without governmental underwriting, be presented as the principal means of financing the world's fair. That revenue bond issue would total approximately $130 million and provide operational funds for the fair.

Under the lease agreement, the old bondholders — holders of the speedway bonds — would receive $12 million through 1981. The new bondholders — holders of the newly issued revenue bonds — would be paid dividends after fair expenses.

At the end of the fair and rental period, the speedway property would still be retained by the old bondholders, and would additionally have an estimated $60 million in construction improvements. The speedway would be retained by the OMS non-profit corporation; and all would be faced with the same position and problem presently plaguing Ontario's white elephant.

Crowe is examining the proposal from Bear, Stearns and Co. and analyzing the advantages and disadvantages for the City Council.

However, he pointed out there are a number of legal problems in the lease arrangement.

"There are questions on who's the landlord, what are the terms of the lease and what happens on termination of the lease," Crowe said.

There are "indefinite features that have to be resolved. The lease and the relationship between the trustee for the old bondholders (Bank of America), the city and the speedway corporation have to be clarified.

"Those are the two problems that could take me a lifetime to resolve. We have to develop an idea of what the terms are going to be before determining the merits of the specific proposal," Crowe continued.

The agreement does call for an option on the speedway site. This is essentially the same as the lien previously objected to by the Ontario City Council. However, it is not a mandatory action and could be exercised only in the event the new bondholders are not paid.

At the end of the fair, the new bondholders or Expo 81 Corp. as the holder of $28 million in reserves from the sale of the revenue bonds has the option of paying off old bondholders, obtaining the lien on the speedway to secure the balance of funds owing, and allowing foreclosure to realize complete payment to new bondholders. The balance of funds after this would then go to the City of Ontario.

The concept of the agreement is equitable, Crowe said.

Crowe did not anticipate completing the analysis of the proposal for at least two weeks.

Chaffey College budget adopted

Chaffey College board of trustees Thursday adopted the final budget for the 1977-78 fiscal year which reflects a seven-tenths of a cent reduction in the tax rate.

The adopted budget is $19,968,179, an increase of more that $2 million over the $17,550,687 budget for the year which concluded on June 30.

The tax rate was set at 62 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Most of the budget increase will be used to help finance two new buildings on the campus, an automobile shop technical lab and a vocational education building.

A taxing problem

Keeping the historic wall of separation between church and state in good repair is a difficult enough task. But what do we do when we are not sure what is church, or what is a bona fide religion?

The other day federal agents raided offices of the Church of Scientology in Los Angeles and Washington, D.C., and carried away quantities of documents the government says were illegally taken from its extensive files on the group by covert Scientology agents.

Scientology, which enjoys tax-exempt status and claims three million members in this country, has been under government scrutiny for years, chiefly because of an unusual counseling technique that some critics say is "mind control."

South Korean Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church is another group that has been accused of practicing mind control on its converts. Cases involving the forcible "deprogramming" of converts have been much in the news and frequently in the courts.

Then there is the Universal Life Church in California, whose only apparent function is to ordain as a minister anyone who pays the mail-order fee. Each diploma is good for unlimited tax exemption benefits — supposedly.

Compounding the situation are at least two U.S.Supreme Court decisions which have expanded the definition of "religion" to include such non-worshipping groups as Humanism and Ethical Culture.

Because all taxpayers must indirectly pay for the support of all tax-exempt organizations, it is time we asked ourselves where the mushrooming of groups claiming tax and other preferences on religious grounds might be taking us.

It is also time the government took a long and thoughtful look at its policies regarding the qualifying of organizations for tax-exempt status.

After all, the wall between church and state is designed to protect both parties.

Darkest Cambodia

What little news has filtered out of the prison-nation of Cambodia since the end of the Vietnam war in April 1975 has been unbelievably horrendous.

It now appears that early reports of the extent of the suffering being inflicted on the Cambodian people by their Communist Khmer Rouge masters were, indeed, exaggerated.

Rather than upwards of 1.5 million Cambodians having been executed by the Khmer Rouge, as stories carried by refugees indicated, the latest estimate is that the toll was around 200,000.

It is not that the Khmer Rouge have not tried. But as one Cambodia-watcher explains it, because of the small size of their army, "the mechanics for executions on a more massive scale are just not there."

Not deliberately executed — but dead all the same — are another 800,000 or so who Cambodians observers believe died of disease or malnutrition, many of them on forced marches out of the cities and towns or from forced labor in the fields.

That brings the total of deaths in a little more than two years to around a million human beings, or about 12 per cent of Cambodia's estimated 1974 population.

That is tragically massive on anybody's scale of reckoning.

Think on these things

When the answers won't come, take your mind off the problem. Sometimes we are so possessed by the thing we have to solve that we couldn't see the solution if it was there — which it is. There is even more than one answer when we can loosen our grip on what's wrong long enough to let it happen.

Our greatest asset is the use of the imagination — the willingness to admit that we have been trying to fit together something not meant to be. When we realize we've been insisting on the wrong answer and let it go, then the right ones can form in our ideas — we can imagine right ways, see new patterns, and accept the perfect one. It was Einstein who told us that the imagination is more important than knowledge for it leaves us open to more than we actually know.

Thoughts

I am the man who has seen affliction under the rod of his wrath; he has driven and brought me into darkness without any light; surely against me he turns his hand again and again the whole day long. — Lamentations 3:1, 2, 3.

Man is never helped in his suffering by what he thinks for himself, but only by revelation of a wisdom greater than his own. It is this which lifts him out of his distress. — Carl Jung, German psychologist.

Lincoln's death probed

WASHINGTON — The FBI has quietly entered the investigation of another presidential assassination — this one the 112-year-old shooting of Abraham Lincoln while he watched a performance at Ford's theater in Washington.

In many respects, the 1865 murder of Lincoln remains even more controversial than the 1963 killing of President John F. Kennedy. Murky questions hang over both tragedies.

The belated FBI inquiry into Lincoln's death may help to resolve such mysteries as these: Was Lincoln the victim of a secret conspiracy reaching into his own cabinet? Was Frederick Douglass, the Martin Luther King, Jr., of the Lincoln era, also marked for murder? Did the assassin, John Wilkes Booth, actually escape and leave another man's body in his place?

New light on these questions is contained on some 18 pages that mysteriously disappeared from Booth's diary but may now have turned up. The diary reportedly was delivered intact to Lincoln's arrogant secretary of war, Edwin M. Stanton, who has been linked by rumors to the assassination plot.

When the diary was later introduced into the Andrew Johnson impeachment hearings, it was missing some pages that had been neatly excised. Now an indefatigable Americana expert, Joseph Lynch of Worthington, Mass., has found what appears to be the missing pages.

He made the discovery while appraising some historical artifacts belonging to Stanton's heirs. The pages were locked in a box in the attic. The heirs had never opened the box; in fact, they had no key.

The pages give a fascinating account, presumbly written by Booth, of his intrigues with Lincoln intimates shortly before the assassination. Some of the most prominent politicians of the period, including Stanton, are implicated.

Referring to a plot perhaps unrelated to the murder, Booth allegedly writes that he may be working for the Secretary of War himself. At another point, he declares: "I swear that I shall lay the body of this tyrant dead upon the altar of Mars." Apparently, Lincoln is the "tyrant," and "Mars," the god of war, could have been a code name for Stanton.

For years, the Booth diary, shorn of its mysterious pages, has been on display at Ford's Theater museum. But the Interior Department, which runs the museum, has now turned over the diary to the FBI. Its handwriting experts, with their ultraviolet scanners, microscopes and other detection devices, are trying to determine whether the diary itself is genuine.

They have made two important, tentative discoveries. The diary contains no writing in invisible ink, as some people have suspected for more than a century. The text also hasn't been altered, as others have thought. But the big question, whether the diary is entirely in Booth's handwriting, remains to be settled.

The FBI's findings may establish whether the 18 newly discovered pages are authentic. Lynch gained considerable credibility by insisting that the missing pages were lined. Most experts had thought the diary was unlined. But the museum's curator, Michael Harman, has now inspected the diary more scientifically and has confirmed that its pages, like those of Lynch's discovery, are dimly lined.

Along with the missing diary pages, Lynch also found hundreds of other intriguing items in the possession of the Stanton heirs. One is a letter to a newspaper, in which Booth reportedly outlined why he killed Lincoln.

A film company, Sunn Classic, has also been investigating the Lincoln assassination for a feature movie called "The Lincoln Conspiracy." One of its researchers, Lawrence Mooney of Alexandria, Va., has turned up some missing Booth letters and other data. Mooney believes he has evidence that Booth escaped and that another man's body was put in his place.

Another researcher, Prof. Ray Neff of Indiana State University, has also produced material which he believes shows Booth escaped at Garrett's farm where most experts believed he had been killed by pursuing troops.

Still another ingredient has been injected into the mystery by Lynch. He has discovered what looks like the name of Frederick Douglass, a black leader, in the Booth diary. This raises the possibility that Booth may have intended to kill Douglass, too.

Meanwhile, Curator Harman, a top government expert on the assassination, is taking an historian's cautious view about the renewed controversy. "It's the original can of worms," he said. "The government didn't conduct a thorough investigation at the time. I don't know whether we'll ever get all the answers."

In Washington

The prevailing standards

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It has become an article of popular faith, in this age of cynicism, that the nation's capital is a modern-day amalgam of Sodom and Gomorrah, corrupting all who come here with irresistible temptations of power and privilege.

People elsewhere seem to assume there is something peculiarly sinister about the atmosphere near the banks of the Potomac which twists and perverts the ethical values of those who are sent here to serve the public interest.

From Watergate to Korean influence-peddling, each new scandal solidifies the conviction that Washington is the capital city of political sin.

But the rest of the country cannot escape responsibility for the ethical standards — or lack thereof — attributed to those who serve in Congress, the White House and the rest of the federal government.

For there is nothing unique about the snares and pitfalls which entrap the careless and the cavalier in Washington. Similar corrupting influences lurk in every county courthouse and state capitol, and politicians everywhere fall prey to them.

Consider, for example, the experience of the youthful state legislator from Oklahoma who has been receiving, since her election last November, an on-the-job education in the prevailing standards of political ethics in this country.

She is Cleta Deatherage, a 26-year-old lawyer from the university community of Norman, Okla. who had yearned to be a politician since she was 11. Last fall, she finally made it, winning a seat in the Oklahoma House.

Before the ink had even dried on her certificate of election, Deatherage found herself showered with goodies from various lobbyists hoping to curry her favor.

There was a leather satchel with her name already engraved on it. A lapel button reading, "Oklahoma State House — Member." A pair of season tickets, worth $100, to the University of Oklahoma football games. Free movie passes. And calendars. And brass plaques. And a card asking her initials so that she might receive a free set of eight monogrammed crystal goblets.

Deatherage politely but firmly declined them all — except for the satchel already engraved. She paid for that. The donors were astounded, bewildered. They were not accustomed to such peculiar behavior.

Patiently, Deatherage explained that the state constitution specifically forbid her to accept "anything of value". She kind of thought the words meant what they said.

If the lobbyists were bemused, her colleagues in the legislature were furious. "Quite a few of them have made snide remarks. They think I'm a squirrel," she admitted.

"I'm not out to embarrass them, or to tell them what is right and wrong. I just feel I can't accept these things.

"My biggest concern is that stuff like this gives the special interests an edge on any citizen or taxpayer. How do you refuse to discuss a guy's bill after you've taken his present?"

She is right, of course. But she is the oddity in politics, not the norm. By the prevailing standards, she is — as she confessed — "a squirrel."

Perhaps there is a distinction between a state legislator who accepts free movie passes from lobbyists and a member of Congress who accepts free trips to South Korea.

But it is all very reminiscent of the famous anecdote about George Bernard Shaw, who is alleged to have asked a haughty society matron whether she would sleep with him for a million dollars. "I might," the lady responded. "Would you do so for $10, then?" Shaw asked. "Of course not!" the woman snapped. "What do you think I am?"

"We've already established what you are, Madam, we're merely dickering about the price," Shaw replied, according to legend.

Just in jest

Inflation helped, of course, but that isn't the only reason for the high prices you are paying for fruits and vegetables at your produce market. Another big contributing factor is that the farmers of America are kept so busy filling out government forms they just don't have enough time left for effective crop raising. Collectively it took them 38 years to fill out their agriculture census questionnaires last year.

Double dipping

By EARL G. WATERS

Concern over "double dipping" into public funds, a reference to those who "retire" from a public agency only to be rehired by another thus enjoying a pension and a salary concurrently, has been growing on the national level as well as within the state.

Legislation aimed at curbing the practice has proposed that any government pensioned person hired by another government agency could only be paid the difference between the pension allotment and the normal salary of the current employment.

It doesn't seem to be the right answer. Aside from the questions of legality bound to arise in any attempt to enforce such provisions, there is the real possibility that the public might be depriving itself of highly qualified and urgently needed personnel.

Furthermore, the solution wouldn't appear to be applicable to the most aggravated cases such as that of Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger, recently exposed as having earned himself at least four separate government pensions, one of which he already is drawing while receiving $42,500 as attorney general. There would be questions of vested rights as well as the constitutionality of applying such limitations to an elected official.

From a citizen's point of view, however, it is no more right for an elected official to double dip than for a civil service employe.

Actually, the most appropriate and workable plan to eliminate those on public payrolls from accumulating multiple pension earnings is to bring all state and local retirement programs under one tent.

As it stands the state is currently operating a half dozen programs, that of the state employes, the judges, the legislators, the teachers and an entirely separate plan by the University of California. Additionally, many cities and counties, as well as a multiplicity of special districts, are going it alone on retirement systems.

These separate plans enable a person to earn retirement benefits from several different governmental entities sometimes, as in the Younger case, drawing retirement pay from one or more while still employed by yet another.

If, however, all pension programs within the state were wired together the opportunity for multiple payments would be eliminated yet mobility in employment, changing from one governmental agency to another, would not be hampered. Instead, an individual leaving one agency and extending his career with others would merely increase the total benefits of eventual retirement under a single payment, the same as if that person's total service had remained with one agency.

This is presently the situation with those working for 20 counties and about 500 special districts and some cities which have affiliated with the state's Public Employes Retirement System (PERS). Such amalgamations would not necessarily mean full integration with PERS but, as its executive officer, Carl Blechinger, explains, could be "dovetailed" to eliminate dual payments and preclude the drawing of benefits until such time as the person actually retires from public service in fact.

The greatest boost for such a scheme would seem to have been provided by the recent testimony of Adm. Hyman Rickover before the House Civil Service Committee. Pointing out the federal government currently has 55 different pension programs, Rickover asserted all should be junked in favor of a single plan for all civilian and military personnel. He indicated such a plan would not only eliminate double dipping but would make federal retirement equitable for all and help to avoid the financial disasters which loom for many of the programs.

His points seem to be just as fitting for the systems in California, many of which are in or near financial troubles.

Ann Landers

How do you get rid of a bum?

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you told a woman to throw the bum out. Do you have any advice on how a 120-pound wife can throw out a 194-pound bum?

If I knew I'd have thrown mine out long ago. In Missouri there is NO law to help a wife throw the bum out. If you have a few guidelines, I'm sure thousands of women would be happy to have them. — Sign Me Living A Nightmare

Dear Living: You've put your finger on one of the worst flaws in the divorce laws of most states. It's a crying shame that a woman has so much trouble throwing the bum out even though he's a liar, a loafer, a cheat, gets drunk and violent and rearrangees her bridgework periodically.

The wife has to call the police while he's hitting her (a neat trick) or enlist the help of the children or the neighbors. By the time the police show up, the skunk is acting like a pussycat. He says, "She's nuts," the police believe him and that's the end of it.

Then of course there are women who won't file charges because they have small children and are afraid they can't make it on their own.

I still say if a woman really wants to get out of a bad marriage she can find a way to do it. The same goes for a man. And these days HE can get the kids if his wife is a lousy mother — and some of them are.

Dear Ann: When I saw in your column the words to that old song, "Does Your Chewing Gum Lose Its Flavor on the Bedpost Overnight?" it brought back some wonderful memories. Your Iowa version was different from the one we learned around Bucks County. Just for old time's sake will you print mine?

"If you put it on the left side will it turn up on the right?"

"If you pull it out like rubber will it snap right back and fight?"

"Can't you see I'm going crazy — won't someone set me right?"

"Does the chewing gum lose its flavor on the bedpost overnight?" — Different Version

Dear D.V.: You wouldn't believe the dozens of "different versions" that came in from all over the country.

Here's one from Memphis:

"If your wife's a restless sleeper will it cause a family fight?"

"A wad of gum in golden curls is not a pretty sight."

"Buy another package, fella, please don't be so tight" —

"Cuz the chewing gum loses flavor on the bedpost overnight."

Dear Ann: Several of us women get together once a week to sew, knit, crochet, embroider, and just talk. We agreed to exchange gifts once a year, the ground rules being we draw names and no one can spend more than $2.

Mrs. M came with a magnificient hand-knit sweater on which she had embroidered a design. It was gorgeous. Of course the person who won it was thrilled.

The question: Did Mrs. M. adhere to the rules? She insists she spent only $2 for the yarn and thread. — Split in Michigan

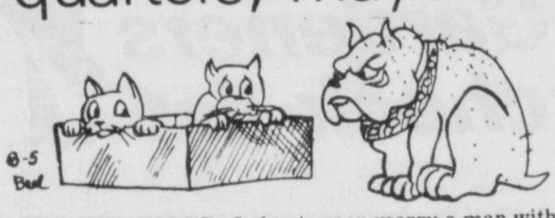
Dear Split: She must have had the yarn and thread on hand. At today's prices, she couldn't have bought the materials for $2. (Maybe she spent $2 for the needles?) Her gift was worth at least $40 — but if she wanted to do all that work, I see no cause for criticism.

Marmaduke

"I don't dare ask ... a peace offering for WHAT?"

Dr. Miller

Try separate quarters, maybe?



DEAR DR. MILLER: I plan to soon marry a man with two young children and a large bulldog. I can handle the children (I think), but my cats certainly can't handle that bulldog. They tried. When we move in, is there some way we can make that monstrous bulldog behave? — N.K.

DEAR N.K.: I wouldn't count on it. It would be a nice, neat feat if the bulldog would graciously accept the cats into his territory, if they would reciprocate by accepting him as a member of the family, and if all could live happily together ever after. It is possible — it happens in many households. But under these circumstances it might be more prudent (if possible) to establish separate quarters for the different species.

Certainly such separation would be eminently advisable in the early days of the merger. The longer they all survive in the same household, and a barrier could be a key to this the greater the chances are that they may someday accept each other, if not as buddies, at least as belonging.

DEAR DR. MILLER: How many meal worms could a grown-up robin eat? — M.F.

DEAR M.F.: An active adult robin can consume as many as 150 medium-sized meal worms per day. However, a variety diet which also includes insects, small fruits and even dog food, would be preferable.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We're going to have to be using a couple of kinds of weed killers around here in the next few weeks. We have pets and so do our neighbors. Should we keep antidotes on hand, just in case? Accidents do happen, of course, and we certainly wouldn't want to kill any of our animals. — P.S.

DEAR P.S.: Fortunately, you're concerned before the fact, not after. Unfortunately, however, there are no effective antidotes for some of these plant poisons. The best procedure, obviously, would be to prevent poisoning in the first place by keeping your pets locked up, warning your neighbors to do the same, and even possibly posting a notice or two. Since roaming pets pay little attention to posted signs, though, and because off-limits areas always hold extra fascination, you'd have no assurance your preventative program would be 100 per cent effective. Consequently, then, you should use the least toxic products for your plant control program. Ideally, your program would include no poisons at all. Good luck, and chances are you'll have it because you're not depending on it.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Are tipplers, turbits, damascenes and dragoons expensive? — T.K.

DEAR T.K.: As with most other pets, pigeon prices vary with supply and demand. You'd have to determine availability and prices locally.

Make room for the bathroom

In the average American home with several small fry, each school morning is marked by a period of intramural warfare known as "sharing the bath." At precisely the moment Dad is shaving, Mother wants to put up her hair ("Well — do you want breakfast or not?"), Tim wants to take a shower, Suzy "just has to" rinse out a few things, and little Billy just has to go. I'll say family room. Starting the day is a Chinese fire drill.

When the kids have finally left home, Dad and Mother are delighted to have the bathroom all to themselves once more. There is hot water, soap and toothpaste last longer, towels are hung up, and you are no longer in danger of stepping on a baseball, an airplane model or a skateboard. Peace at last.

It has arrived not a moment too soon, apparently, because we are reported to be at the dawning of the Renaissance of the Bath, the Golden Age of King John. A friendly Diamond Bar reader has sent me an article telling of all manner of extravagant and luxurious bathrooms being built in houses and apartments from Newport, R.I., to Newport Beach, Calif. Gold faucets, purple drapes, swag lamps, hidden stereo, Oriental rugs, incense burners. Gosh — I'd feel like the caliph of Calif.

The bathroom is no longer a bathroom, the dullest, most neglected (if most essential) little room in the house, but a latter-day Xanadu suitable for the most exotic rites. An American manufacturer is putting out a self-contained bathroom called The Environment in which the bather can go back to nature and experience relaxing cycles of sun, rain, steam and wind. ("Excuse me, I've got to go to The Environment.") You'd almost be embarrassed to use the, er, plumbing facilities in those elegant surroundings.

Sheryl Wagner of New York, a designer of luxury baths, tells of tubs as large as swimming pools. One New York apartment is a small gymnasium, complete with weights, Exercycles and for all I know a punching bag. Some plush bathrooms have couches and a fireplace. Is the living room on the way out?

For women who cannot redesign their homes into a super spa, French designer Karl Lagerfeld, creator of the Chloe Bath Collection, suggests raising plants in your bathroom, having flowers in the tub, growing therapeutic herbs like rose geranium and lemon balm, ("Through the dismal swampland, searching for you . . .") Be sure to have music — a stereo or a small tape recorder. Decorate the bathroom in pleasing blues, greens and peaches (how about pears?). Spray the room with a fragrance such as Chloe, and when you sink into your hot, heady, Olympic-size bathtub like a 20th Century Caligula, have at your fingertips everything you need for an enriching bath — moisturizers, bath gel, powders and makeup. (I presume soap as well.)

M. Lagerfeld urges us to make a bath "a most pleasant experience," but such a jungle pool seems more a setting for some wild orgies. You'd have to expect Cleopatra's barge to come floating by — and Busby Berkeley's cameras peering from the rose geranium and lemon balm.

Here is how to live a century

So you want to live to be 100, do you? The surveytakers checked 1,500 men and women who've done so to find out what they recommend: 1. Leave home early and start making your own way. 2. Work for yourself rather than for somebody else, when possible. 3. Don't get all knotted up about security; just manage things as they come. 4. Get married. And again, if necessary. And again. 5. Have plenty of children. Predictably enough, there seems to be a kind of never-give-up attitude common to all these people, say the researchers. They insist on being in charge.

SOUTH PACIFIC

Q. "Whereabouts in which ocean is the world's most distant point from any land?"

A. A place in the South Pacific that's approximately 1,660 miles from Pitcairn Island, Ducie Island and Cape Bart. Consider the circle of water around it in which there's no surface land at all, about 8,557,000 square miles. That sheet of brine is bigger than any one country, even the Soviet Union.

Q. "Do women ever commit suicide by hanging themselves?"

A. That's rare. Very rare. When it happens, though, the woman uses a belt or strap from her own clothing, virtually never a rope. Or so the police records indicate.

Q. "How long would you have to jog or walk to burn up 140 calories in a dry martini?"

A. Jog, about 14 minutes. Walk, about 27 minutes.

Q. "What proportion of the full-term babies are born head first?"

A. About 96 per cent.

Diabetes and drinking alcohol

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son has been a diabetic for 15 years, beginning at age 27. There is no family history of diabetes and he has never been overweight. He takes a daily injection of insulin.

In the early years of his diabetes, he occasionally suffered insulin shock. In later years, this has happened only infrequently.

At times, such as at parties or when with friends, he drinks freely of alcoholic beverages, but never to the point of being intoxicated. He says that the consumption of alcoholic beverages is not harmful to his diabetic condition.

He exercises regularly by jogging, riding a bicycle, playing basketball and other vigorous activities. He is in good physical condition, but recently has mentioned that he occasionaliy feels numbness in his extremities.

My wife and I are concerned about his frequent use of alcoholic beverages. We think that it may cause some complications or worsen his diabetic condition. We would like your opinion on this matter.

DEAR READER — In my opinion alcohol and diabetes do not mix. Alcohol affects the way the liver controls blood sugar. A person who has had too much alcohol often has a low blood sugar as a consequence of this action. Obviously then a person taking a regulated amount of insulin may have some changes in insulin requirements when he uses alcohol.

A diabetic taking insulin must regulate his life. That includes food habits, drinking habits and exercise habits. The amount of insulin required depends upon these habits as well as periods of psychic stress or any infectious illness.

In addition, a diabetic may develop disease of the liver. Any major use of alcohol speeds up some of the complications of diabetes. I do not know what your son means by having numbness in his extremities but diabetis will affect the nerves to the legs and sometimes other parts of the body. The best protection against nerve damage of this type is a well-regulated control of the blood sugar level. This will not always prevent the complications but most specialists agree that it helps.

All things considered I would be inclined to discourage your son from using alcohol — particularly in anything more than a one drink occasional social affair. I think he may also profit from seeing his doctor about the "numbness in his extremities".

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-11, Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention and Management. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a test for diabetes and they said I was on the border line. Does that mean that I am in danger of becoming a diabetic?

Should I go on a diet or take medication for it? At present I am doing neither. I am 76 years old and very active for my age.

DEAR READER — The terminology regarding diabetes varies but about the most you can conclude from that report is that the laboratory studies failed to show that you have diabetes. In that case you can pretty much disregard it. The only recommendation I would make to you would be to eliminate any excess body fat that you might have and stay on the lean side. You will stay in better health and stay active if you do that anyway.

For Saturday, Aug. 6, 1977
Your Birthday, August 6, 1977

New personal ambitions could be awakened in you this coming year. That is admirable. You must be careful not to get so involved you don't take time to smell the roses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Pride goeth before a fall and you could take a mighty tumble if you place too much stress on your image today rather than on whether you're paying your dues. To find out more about yourself send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You lack faith in your ideas today, and consequently put too much stock in criticism. As a result you will accomplish little.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be careful that you're not maneuvered into a position today so that you'll feel obligated. If this occurs, it could ruin a friendship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Should your opinion conflict with that of the majority today, keep it to yourself. You'll only make waves. Nothing constructive will result.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't take on a task today that you feel queasy about before you begin. The job you do won't be a credit to you or to the project at hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A heap of problems will develop if you try, unasked, to manage someone else's affairs today. Don't butt-in where you're not invited.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your mate may be a trifle testy today. The best course for you could be to keep quiet and stay out of range.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Talk up to people today. Don't look down on anyone. This even applies to those who, for your own reasons, you might not consider to be worth the effort.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Before you join that friendly poker game with your pals today, be sure it's of the penny-ante variety, or you could take a bath.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to magnify family problems today. You could create a major issue that would distress all in your household.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Usually you're the one in the crowd who can spot a silver lining first. Not so today — you see more dark clouds than bright ones.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Handle your money frugally today, or a bad case of spender's remorse could set in to put a damper on some things you're looking forward to.

The magician believes that he can make tricks spring out of his hand like rabbits from a hat. Any time he is declarer, he bids to ridiculous slams or games confident that his superlative play, plus a little bit of luck, will bring the contract home.

Today we see him bid six notrump for no reason except that feeling of pride. He held just 21 points for his two-notrump opening, which is the minimum he plays for that bid.

Trick one produces the jack, king and ace of diamonds. He leads the ace of clubs at trick two; a low club to the nine at trick three. East takes his queen and returns a diamond to dummy's queen.

South cashes four spades while discarding the deuce of diamonds from dummy, plays a club, picks up the jack, scores a third club trick, discards his seven of diamonds and plays hearts. The queen fails to drop and he is down one.

As he explains it is bad luck. As we see it, it is unjustifiable overbidding.

Ask the Jacobys

A Wisconsin reader wants to know the correct lead against notrump with ace-king-8-3-2 of diamonds and no other high cards.

We assume the lead is against three notrump and the correct lead is fourth best. If no one holds four diamonds and partner can gain the lead you will take four diamond tricks. If declarer scores a trick with a doubleton queen, it is just bad luck.

Here's the answer . . .

Q. — No matter how many times I put up 2 by 4 studs, I can't seem to master the knack of hammering them in place. When I drive in the nails at the bottom, the stud always moves. Is there some way of doing this that I don't know about?

A. — Professionals have their own pet ways of nailing studs in place so that they don't shift position. One of the most common is to brace one foot against one side of the stud while driving a nail into the other side at the proper angle. If you have a lot of studs to install, you might try something I learned years ago. Let's assume the studs will be placed 16 inches apart on center; that is, 16 inches from the center of one stud to the center of the next. Since the 2-inch side of the stud actually is 1½ inches, that means the center of each stud will be at the ¾ths of an inch mark. That leaves exactly 14½ inches between each stud. Therefore, cut a piece of wood 14½ inches long. That now becomes your spacer between studs. Not only does it enable you to keep the studs the correct distance apart, it can be used as an aid to prevent a stud from moving while it is being nailed. Once the first stud is in place, put the spacer next to it atop the sole plate. Rest the next stud against it and hammer in a nail on the opposite side. When the second stud is set, remove the spacer and do the same thing with all other studs. Once in a while, the spacer will become lodged between two studs, but a couple of bangs with a hammer or mallet will free it.

Q. — We are having a house built soon and are having considerable discussion about the placement of the door in the attached garage. Do you have any suggestions?

A. — Yes, but very often the placement of the garage door is dictated by the size of the plot on which the house is to be located. If you are fortunate enough to have enough land so that the garage door can be placed almost anywhere, a side or rear-entrance garage usually is better. The garage then makes the house look larger without the door being visible from the front. If you don't want the door to be visible even from the side, then place it in the rear, but be very, very sure there is sufficient space to maneuver the car and that driving the auto to the back of the house will not constitute a safety hazard, especially if there are children in the family. Should you decide, whatever the reason, to place the garage door at the front, don't paint it a color that contrasts with that of the house. If you do, people will notice the garage door before they notice the house.

Sweet scented, beautiful

Night 'blooming' flowers a novelty for garden

For a new novelty in the garden, how about considering night blooming flowers? The plants comprising this group are a select few with a certain charm rarely surpassed. Besides, many are extra sweet scented and beautiful. Surely the air of mystery and the suspense of waiting for their blooms to open must intrigue you!

Possibly, the most famous of this group is the night blooming Cereus whose several varieties are all reknown for their spectacular blossoms which grow up to 14 inches across. Admittedly, each flower lasts but one night, yet even that short time is enough to impress you with their magnificance. While the plants themselves are overshadowed by the blooms, they are very tough and undemanding.

A little less exotic but still excitingly different is the Moonflower (Calonyction aculeatum) a vigorous climbing perennial grown as an annual in cold winter areas. It has a large, up to 6 foot white, Morning Glory-like flowers opening in early evening which emit sweet scents as they unfold. This plant is happiest in lean soil and hot sunny locations. Don't pamper it or you'll get foliage without flowers. To grow along with these try the night blooming species of Evening Primroses. They also like lean soil and sunny spots. Their bright yellow, cupped flowers make a lovely show. Don't forget the Four O'clocks either. These annuals open their perky flowers in later afternoon and provide color with red, pink, white and yellow trumpets.

A robust, self-sowing annual that will thrive in the shade is the Flowering Tabacco (Nicotiana). Its tubular, starry white flowers are also very fragrant. Another annual with an even more commanding fragrance is the Night Scented Stock. The pale lilac flowers aren't especially significant, but their perfume certainly is. Finally, for a nice daytime display as well as wonderful evening scents, try Sweet Rockets (Hesperis matronalis). The biennial likes shade and self-sows readily so give it room.

Plant these lovely species in pots on your terrace or in the garden nearby. Their culture is generally simple whether in containers or in the ground. Just make sure they're near at hand in order to fully enjoy them. You might also consider planting other light colored day annuals and installing strategic lighting to further emphasize the beauty of your night garden.

Landscape boom hits Southland

Professional landscape contractors are reporting a boom in business, particularly in southern California, according to the California Landscape Contractors Association (CLCA), a trade group representing the industry.

The association says that new landscaping is being installed at unprecedented rates. Hard-pressed to understand the great increase and whether it is because of the drought or despite it, association officials speculate that private and commercial customers are probably more conscious today for the need for professional landscaping. Much of the new landscape installations contain drought-tolerant plant materials and more sophisticated sprinkler systems.

In addition, the association speculates that many people want to get new landscaping installed and established before the drought situation worsens. The association noted that newly installed landscaping usually requires more water, at first, than does established landscapes.

Landscape contractors in northern California, an area hardest hit by the drought, report business as "stable." Competition is becoming extremely fierce in that area due to the number of unlicensed operators in the field. CLCA claims that those who perform landscaping without the required state license are offering cut-rate prices because of the scarcity of work. CLCA stated that the unlicensed operators are able to offer cut-rate prices since they don't carry the same overhead as a state-licensed contractor, such as insurance and taxes. The unlicensed people are also installing sub-standard plant materials which would not survive the continuing drought situation and are not installing the more sophisticated and more expensive sprinkler systems, CLCA claimed.

The president of the statewide group is Bill Kessloff, who operates a landscape maintenance business in southern California. Kessloff says that landscape maintenance business is also good in most parts of the state due to what he says is increased public awareness and concern for good landscape maintenance. He also noted the public's increased awareness of the appreciation value which good landscaping has on property values.

CLCA indicated that business looks good for the immediate future due to the number of projects currently in the planning stages over the next two years.

CLCA represents only state-licensed landscape and irrigation contractors throughout California and is the largest such organization in the United States. The association is headquartered in Los Angeles.

The almost fanatical interest in solar energy housing may have shut the eyes of many homeowners to the dozens of energy-saving measures that can be taken immediately.

What is especially interesting about the steps that can be taken to save energy is that they will interlock with any partial or complete solar energy systems added to existing homes. This should be comforting to those who visualize solar collectors on their roofs, but aren't sure when they will act on their wishes. Many won't get around to the use of solar energy for years, either because they may find it more expensive than they thought, even with the financial inducements being offered, or they will have decided to await further technological advances in the field.

John A. Murphy, in his book, "The Home Owner's Energy Guide," tells how he got interested in solar energy and designed a house that would cover all his heating and cooling costs. The only trouble was that, when the drawings were completed, the solar collector was twice as large as the house!

Most of us have been bombarded with information about the economic benefit of extra insulation in our houses. The savings are real, especially if someone in the family can do the installation work himself. It is a phase of do-it-yourselfing that requires virtually no skill, only a strict adherence to the manufacturer's directions.

The list of energy-saving features that can be built into a new house is a lot longer than you might think. For instance, in a program developed by the National Association of Home Builders Research Foundation under contract to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, the specifications for a demonstration house listed 56 energy-saving features. In addition to the usual increased insulation, weatherstripping, double and triple-glazed windows and doors, and many other measures about which most of us have some knowledge, the list included such things as 7-foot, 6-inch ceilings to reduce interior volume; surfacemounted electrical outlets with wiring in the floor to avoid penetrating the walls; a water heater set back to 120 degrees Fahrenheit; and heat circulator fireplace units with glass door enclosures to utilize outdoor combustion air.

A three-bedroom, 1,200-square-foot house built to these specifications is being tested in Mt. Airy, Md. Additional construction costs were about $3,000, but are expected to be cost-effective; that is, they will pay for themselves with a reasonable period of time because of the savings in energy costs.

It will take about a year to pinpoint the energy performance of the house compared to a similar conventional house. Meanwhile, all kinds of meters are keeping tabs on the energy usage.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

—August weather is ideal for planting dwarf citrus or full size tree varieties. The warm days will get these lovers of the heat off to a good start. Make a basin around the tree for proper irrigation but be certain to plant the tree a little higher than the soil level to keep water from standing on the trunk.

—If you love fresh limes for your summertime coolers, plant the Bearss Lime. It's seedless and juicy with that tangy sour taste you look for in limes. The Bearss Lime is also ideally suited to California gardens wherever Oranges do well.

Pomona to have pro football team?

An advertisement in Wednesday's Progress Bulletin proclaimed that "professional football is coming to Pomona."

The ad went on to state that a promoter, a general manager, coaches and public relations people were needed. Applicants were asked to write E.M. Schalow at a Long Beach address.

Edward M. Schalow, it turns out, is the general manager of the Long Beach Mustangs of the California Football League, but has plans of starting his own league in several Southland cities next year.

"We plan to have teams in 11 Southern California communities." Schalow said by phone Thursday. "We want teams in Pomona, San Bernardino, Riverside, San Fernando Valley, Santa Monica, San Gabriel Valley, Long Beach, Orange County and two in Los Angeles."

There are already California Football League teams in four of those areas — San Gabriel Valley, Long Beach, Orange County and Los Angeles. The other four CFL members are located in Northern California — San Jose, Sacramento, Fairfield and Twin Cities (Yuba City-Marysville).

Hope for merger

"We hope that the four Southern Division CFL teams will merge with us and become part of this new league," Schalow said. "If they don't we'll have to find four other cities — we want an 11-team league so that each team can play a 10-game schedule.

"The idea is to have all 11 teams right here in the Southern California basin," Schalow continued. "The CFL is off to a good start (this is its first year of operation), but I feel it would be better to have all the teams here in the same area."

Under Schalow's plan, there would be another 11-team division in Northern California. But there would be no interdivisional games other than a playoff at season's end. The CFL has interdivisional play during the regular scedule.

"The CFL teams have to travel too much," according to Schalow, a 56-year-old retired jeweler and former boxing promoter. "It costs too much money for minor league football teams to travel all over the state, for one thing, and better rivalries would develop between teams from nearby cities. Southern California fans aren't going to go all the way to Sacramento to watch their teams play."

Schalow, who would be commissioner, says its not really as big a project as its seems to start a new football league. "As long as you have everything systemized, it's not so bad," he said. "People in each town would actually do the work of forming their town's team. So we're looking for backers, promoters, general managers, coaches and everything from each town.

"I think we can make a go of it — the Rams have gone out of sight as far as ticket prices go."

Saints don't approve

A call to Carl Ferrill, president, general manager and part owner of the CFL's San Gabriel Valley Saints as well as Baldwin Park High's athletic director, revealed that the Saints have not been contacted by Schalow concerning a merger or anything else.

Ferrill, who had not previously heard of Schalow's planned new league, was dead set against the idea.

"The Saints are quite happy as part of the California Football League," he said emphatically. "We like playing the teams up north. If you put 11 teams in Southern California, you've really saturated the area.

"I don't think there are enough good players around to stock that many teams. We have players from Simi Valley, from San Diego, from all over Southern California, because there are only so many good players that are in shape in any area.

"If you had too many teams operating, you'd just reduce the play to sandlot level."

Ferrill said the National Football League is impressed with the CFL's organization and has already taken two players from the San Jose club. "We've really built something," he said. "It costs plenty to take our whole team to San Jose, but if you're going to go into something, you'd better be willing to do it right."

Ferrill, whose Saints are run on a non-profit basis (excess proceeds go to charity), said the team has been breaking even, drawing home crowds of 2,000 to 3,000.

Whether the area can support more minor league teams is debatable, but if you've always wanted to own, manage or coach a professional football team, E.M. Schalow's address is 600 E. Ocean Blvd., Long Beach 90802.

Kings' new coach believes in defense

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new coach of the Los Angeles Kings is a firm believer in the importance of defense.

Ron Stewart, named Thursday as the Kings' coach, learned about defense under Punch Imlach while a player for the Toronto Maple Leafs during the Stanley Cup championship years of 1962 through 1964.

Stewart, 45, played a total of 21 years in the National Hockey League, playing in 1,353 games.

"I believe in a strong defense mixed with an effective offense," said Stewart, who served briefly as coach of the New York Rangers in 1975 and was the Rangers' director of player personnel when hired by Kings' owner Jack Kent Cooke.

Stewart, who replaces Bob Pulford at the Kings' helm, returns to the franchise that gave him his first coaching opportunity.

He coached at Portland of the Western Hockey League in 1973-74 and at Springfield, Mass., of the American Hockey League the next season. He served as coach of the Rangers in 1975, but was replaced after three months.

"I'm thrilled to get an opportunity to coach again and work with Mr. Cooke and his fine organization," said Stewart. "I wanted two things, to return to coaching and to complete the coaching start I made with Mr. Cooke's organization.

"Since I started at the bottom with Portland and Springfield, I wanted a crack at the top with Los Angeles."

Cooke, who was not at the Forum press conference announcing Stewart's appointment, said in a prepared statement:

"I chose Ron Stewart because of his sterling record in my organization and his winning ways. He coached Portland to the finals in the Western Hockey League in 1973-74, and the next year he guided Springfield of the American Hockey League to the Calder Cup.

"He's a winning coach and he'll win with the Los Angles Kings, of that I'm positive."

Stewart becomes the seventh coach of the Kings, who'll be starting their 11th season in the league.

Under Pulford last season, they had a 34-31-15 record and 83 points, finishing second behind Montreal in the Norris Division. Los Angeles made it to the Stanley Cup quarterfinals before being eliminated by the Boston Bruins.

KING OF KINGS

Ron Stewart, former coach of the New York Rangers, is seen answering questions in Inglewood Thursday at a news conference during which he was named new head coach of the Los Angeles Kings. Stewart, 45-years-old and a former player with the Toronto Maple Leafs, coached Springfield, a Kings' farm team, to the Calder Cup Championships.

Vermeil gets fresh start

By The Associated Press

Winning isn't everything—and if you're a holdover from last year's Philadelphia Eagles, it isn't anything.

During the National Football League's 1976 exhibition season, the Eagles played six games and won exactly none of them. That didn't get them off on the right foot when the games counted. They wound up 4-10.

So for Dick Vermeil, starting his second year as Philadelphia's head coach, tonight's game against the New York Jets signals a fresh start. And although he doesn't consider victories absolutely essential, he admits they could do wonders for the Eagles' hopes.

"Winning a few is always important for any team like ours that's been down for many years," says Vermeil, who figures to start former Los Angeles Rams quarterback Ron Jaworski.

"If you've been losing all the time you almost play in fear of losing or expect to lose. I think that we've really erased about 80 per cent of that kind of thinking and to play well enough to win a few preseason games would be nice—but we're not going to base how we play through the season on how we do in the preseason."

In tonight's other game it's Baltimore at Denver. On Saturday it's Minnesota at Los Angeles, Miami at Tampa Bay, Atlanta at St. Louis, New Orleans at Chicago, San Diego at Dallas, New England at the New York Giants, Buffalo at Pittsburgh, Kansas City at Detroit and Cincinnati at Green Bay. On Sunday it's Seattle at San Francisco and on Monday night it's Houston at Oakland and Washington at Cleveland.

It's not as much of a fresh start as it is an attempt at rebounding for the Jets. They got their exhibition season started a week early—and it started on the wrong foot with a 20-6 loss to the Chicago Bears in last Saturday's Hall of Fame game.

"No way I'm going to get discouraged, no way," Jets Coach Walt Michaels said. "Sure I was disappointed in the turnovers (six of them), but I was satisfied with the rest."

Denver should have a nice free-for-all going for a while over the starting quarterback job with the departure of Steve Ramsey to the Giants. Craig Morton, who came to the Broncos in that swap, Craig Penrose, Steve Spurrier and Norris Weese will all be trying to show their stuff against the Colts.

For Tampa Bay's Buccaneers, last year's preseason was a rousing success compared to Philadelphia's showing, considering they were 1-5 (beating Atlanta 17-3). Of course, things went downhill after that, with the Bucs careening to an 0-14 record when the games counted.

They hope to get off on the right foot this time against the team which is sure to become their traditional rival. Miami, looking to do a bit of rebuilding after its first losing season since 1969, had to struggle last year to beat the lowly Bucs 23-20.

Tanana tries for 13th vs. Orioles

ANAHEIM (AP) — The California Angels and Baltimore Orioles begin a three-game series at Anaheim Stadium tonight as the Angels try to continue their role as a spoiler.

Ross Grimsley, 8-6, will pitch for the Orioles against Frank Tanana, 12-7. The teams play again Saturday night and wind up the series Sunday afternoon.

Baltimore enters the series just one-half game behind Boston in the American League East. California, meanwhile, trails the Chicago White Sox by 13½ games in the AL West.

The Angels, who were idle Thursday, won two of three games earlier this week from the New York Yankees, another contender in the AL East.

NHL clubs play musical coaches

By The Associated Press

The game of musical coaches being played by several National Hockey League teams is just about over.

The Buffalo Sabres and Los Angeles Kings were the latest NHL clubs to hire new coaches, the Sabres signing Marcel Pronovost, a 20-year NHL veteran with Detroit and Toronto Thursday, while the Kings opted for Ron Stewart, one-time coach of the New York Rangers.

The St. Louis Blues were expected to announce today that Leo Boivin, who coached the team in 1976, will replace Emile Francis behind the bench. Francis will remain with the team as president and general manager.

Previous coaching changes during the off-season included the naming of Bob Pulford at Chicago, Bobby Kromm in Detroit, Johnny Wilson in Pittsburgh and Roger Neilson in Toronto.

Pronovost, 47, fills the Buffalo vacancy created when Floyd Smith's contract was not renewed. A veteran of more than 1,200 NHL games, Pronovost played for five Stanley Cup winners—four in Detroit and one in Toronto. His familiarity with the NHL title was instrumental in his hiring, according to Sabres General Manager Punch Imlach.

"Marcel has plenty of experience and has proven to be a winner," said Imlach. "You are not on five Stanley Cup teams unless you're part of a winning combination.

"We haven't won a Stanley Cup yet. We hope Marcel can get us one."

Pronovost admitted to a lack of knowledge of the players on the Sabres, who managed a second-place finish behind Boston last season in the Adams Division.

"I want to be compatible with the players," said Pronovost. "But it would be premature for me to give an evaluation. I saw Buffalo play only four games last season."

The Sabres were swept by the New York Islanders in the quarter-finals of last year's playoffs, one of the major reasons for the switch in coaches.

Goodson goes on disabled list

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers placed infielder Ed Goodson on the 15-day disabled list Thursday and recalled catcher Kevin Pasley from their Albuquerque farm team, a Dodger spokesman said.

Goodson suffered a groin pull in Wednesday's game against the Mets in New York.

Pasley, 24, was hitting .299 for the Dodgers' Pacific Coast League Dukes. He is expected to join the club Friday in Philadelphia for Los Angles' game against the Phillies.

Fitzsimmons signs pact

BUFFALO (AP) — Cotton Fitzsimmons, who has coached National Basketball Association teams in Phoenix and Atlanta, signed a contract today to coach the Buffalo Braves of the NBA.

Fitzsimmons signed the pact about 10 minutes before he was introduced to reporters at a news conference.

Namath ready for L.A. debut

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Minnesota and Los Angeles, two longtime National Football League rivals, open their preseason schedule Saturday night in a game that will feature Joe Namath's debut as a Ram.

Namath, the former New York Jets quarterback signed by Los Angeles a few months ago, is scheduled to play the third quarter of the contest in the Coliseum.

Rams Coach Chuck Knox said Pat Haden, the Ram starter at the end of last season, will open the game and play the first half, with Namath coming on in the third quarter and rookie Vince Ferragamo playing the final period.

The Rams will be playing the Vikings for the second time in the past seven months, and they'd no doubt prefer to forget the last meeting.

In that contest, the National Football Conference championship game, Minnesota ended Los Angeles' Super Bowl hopes with a 24-13 victory.

Despite the fact it's an exhibition game, Vikings Coach Bud Grant hopes this confrontation turns out essentially the same.

"You have to play to win in the preseason," Grant said. "Things have changed; no longer can we experiment.

"We draw big crowds and we owe it to the paying customers to play our best people as long as possible to win."

Grant indicated he enjoys the rivalry that has developed between his team and the Rams.

"The Rams certainly are one of the best teams in football," he remarked. "The respect we have for them I'm sure is equalled by the respect they have for us."

While Grant said he expects do to little experimenting, Knox will, due in great part to the Rams' holdouts.

At tight end, Bob Klein has retired and Charles Young has not reported, so Terry Nelson will start. A host of youngsters, including Dwight Scales, Freeman Johns and rookie Billy Waddy, will be battling for the wide receiver spot left open when Harold Jackson did not come to camp.

Greg Horton will start at left guard on the offense in place of veteran Tom Mack, who's also a holdout. At center, Ed Flanagan and Rick Nuzum will vie for the job left vacant when Rich Saul did not report.

Wife's putting tip helps Elder take lead

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Lee Elder parlayed a putting tip from his wife and "a little change in my swing" into a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $210,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament.

"Now I've got the lead, the other fellows have to catch me. And if I can just go out and do again what I did today, I ought to be able to run and hide from them a little bit," said Elder, who scored 10 "3's" on his way to a gaudy, seven-under-par 64 Thursday.

Reminded he'd almost won twice in this tournament, once finishing third and once losing in a playoff, Elder grinned and said:

"I just want to get rid of the 'almost' and go ahead and win it."

He credited a putting tip from wife Rose, delivered last week in Vail, Colo. while he was playing in a pro-am event that also included former President Ford, with a major assist.

"She noticed I was taking the club back outside the line," Elder said. He corrected the fault and had nine one-putt greens on the friendly 6,598-yard Wethersfield Country Club course that, as usual, gave up some of the lowest scores of the year.

Six men—Curtis Strange, Kermit Zarley, Dick Mast, George Burns, Jim Simons and Terry Diehl, the first-round leader a week ago in Philadelphia—were locked at 65, only one stroke off the pace.

Lee Trevino, a front-running winner in the Canadian Open in his last start, topped another group at 67, only two shots back in the chase for a $42,000 first prize.

PGA champ Dave Stockton had a 67, U.S. Open title-holder Hubert Green 68, Johnny Miller 70 and defending champ Rik Massengale matched par 71.

More than half the field of 156 broke par in the ideal playing conditions, mild temperatures with just a hint of breeze, and more than four dozen players had scores in the 60s.

The scores were so low Massengale faces the need for a score better than par in the second round if he is to survive the cut when the field is trimmed for the last 36 holes.

"It's a frustrating course," said Diehl, who didn't make a bogey and didn't have a "5" on his card. "You may be playing pretty good, then look up at the leader board and see somebody 100 under par and then you miss a couple of little putts and it's pretty frustrating."

Elder, who has won two tour titles and gained international attention as the first black to play in the Masters, avoided those frustrations, however. The change in his game helped, he said.

"For a while I'd been trying to cut the ball. Finally, I decided to go back to the draw, the shot that I won a lot of money with. I feel a lot more comfortable with it," he said.

He played the front nine three under par, then swept into the lead alone with birdies on four of five holes starting on the 11th. He capped it off with a 15-foot birdie putt, his longest of the day, on the 15th.

World record

MONTREAL — Graham Smith, 19, of Edmonton, set a world record in the 100-meter individual medley at the Canadian swimming championships, winning the final in two minutes, 5.31 seconds.

That broke the existing world record of 2:06.08, held by Bruce Furniss of the United States.

Little shoots eagle

SUNNINGDALE, England — South Africa's Sally Little made an eagle on the way to a three-stroke lead over Judy Rankin after two rounds of the $100,000 European Women's Open golf championship.

The South African shot a six-under-par 68 in difficult windy conditions over the 6,174-yard layout and had a two-round aggregate of 137—11 under par.

Mrs. Rankin, from Midland, Tex., was three under par for the day and totalled 140.

Debbie Austin of West Palm Beach, Fla. and Nancy Lopez of Roswell, N.M., were at 143. Sixty-one players made the cut and went into the last two rounds.

Six birdies

DUESSELDORF, West Germany — South African Tiene Britz carded six birdies for a course record four-under-par 66 to grab the first-round lead in the 43rd German Open golf championship.

The 32-year-old Johannesburg golfer finished the opening round on the Duesseldorf-Hubbelrath course with a twostroke lead over last year's runnerup, Antonio Garrido of Spain.

The tournament has attracted 137 pros and 12 amateurs from 27 countries, including the United States.

Vilas tames Dibley

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Guillermo Vilas mixed spins, slices and bullets to tame hardserving Colin Dibley of Australia 6-4, 6-1 in a third-round match of an $85,000 open tennis tournament.

After spotting Dibley a 2-0 lead, Vilas found the range with his down-the-line and crossing backhands to win the next four games. At one point, Vilas—considered one of the top claycourt players in the world—scored 18 unanswered points.

In other matches, John McEnroe of Douglastown, N.Y., advanced to the quarterfinals with a 6-2, 7-6 victory over Patricio Cornejo of Chile, fourth-seeded Jaime Fillol of Chile eliminated Henry Bunis of Cincinnati 6-3, 2-6, 6-4 and sixth-seeded Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia defeated Onny Parun of New Zealand 6-4, 7-6.

Rosewall wins marathon

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. — Veteran Ken Rosewall won a marathon match against 23-year-old Bernard Fritz of France 6-7, 7-6, 6-4 to advance to the quarter-finals of a $125,000 international tennis tournament.

Also advancing to the quarter-finals were top-seeded Jimmy Connors who easily defeated Zan Guerry of Chattanooga, Tenn., 6-2, 6-2, and second-seeded Brian Gottfried who eliminated 10th-seeded Bob Lutz 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Australia sweeps

NEWPORT, R.I. — Australian yachts Gretel II, the 1970 challenger, and Australia each swept two races as Baron Marcel Bich's France I ran into trouble in the opening day of eliminations to determine which foreign boat will challenge for the America's Cup.

Cuevas defends crown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jose Pipino Cuevas is a quiet 19-year-old who does most of his talking with his fists in the ring.

Cuevas, the World Boxing Association's youngest welterweight champion ever, will get his chance to "speak out" Saturday night when he defends his crown against Canadian Clyde Gray.

Cuevas, who brings a 25-3 record into the fight against the 30-year-old Gray at the Olympic Auditorium, is one of the least flamboyant champions currently in boxing.

A deeply religious, family-oriented young man who's doing well in a number of business ventures, Cuevas' quiet lifestyle is perhaps a minus in drawing attention. But he has drawn a great deal of respect.

A newspaper in his native Mexico City recently wrote that Cuevas is a good example for all youngsters in Mexico to follow.

The fifth of 11 children in a financially comfortable family, Cuevas said he began fighting when he was 12, and his father finally sought boxing instruction for him.

"I began fighting in school and fighting in the street, so my father took me to the gym," Cuevas said.

"He told me, 'You like to fight? You're going to learn to fight right."

Cuevas' father, Gerardo, is a butcher. And the younger Cuevas, although he doesn't punch sides of beef like "Rocky" did in the movie, he does work out in his father's slaughter house, where he helps kill the animals.

Cuevas, who has scored 18 knockouts and become known as El Toro, said he considers himself a slugger and a puncher. Asked to rank himself as a boxer, he smiled and replied, "I'm No. 1."

Cuevas' only previous fight in Los Angeles was last summer.

Near-miss for Ricky Murillo

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Ricky Murillo came within five feet of hurling a no-hitter Thursday night in the semifinals of the winners bracket of the Pomona City Senior Division Little League Tournament.

Straw Hat Pizza downed the Elks (National No. 1) squad 6-2 while D.A.V. defeated the Northwest Dodgers in the losers bracket, 4-3, at Ralph Welch Park.

Straw Hat Pizza will meet the winner of tonight's (6:30 p.m.) contest losers bracket). Saturday for the city championship. Straw Hat Pizza will face either D.A.V. or the Elks squad. The championship game is scheduled for a 5 p.m. start Saturday, however, the game may be played at 10 a.m. A decision on the starting time will be determined after tonight's D.A.V.-Elks contest.

A pop fly bunt off the bat of Mike Johnson fell in between third baseman Lloyd Falgout, catcher Robert Sanchez and Murillo five feet up the base line in the fourth inning. Johnson was crossing the first base bag as the three fielders gathered around the dropping sphere. It was the only hit Murillo allowed in the contest as he struckout seven and walked five Elks' batters. He retired the first nine batters he faced, striking out five of them.

He surrendered two runs in the fifth but both were unearned as both Elks' runners scored on errant throws by the Straw Hat third baseman. The Elks did not the ball hard off Murillo as he kept them off-balance with a good mixture of fastballs and curves.

Straw Hat Pizza jumped out in front 3-0 as Shane Falgout ripped a triple to left for two runs and scored on an errant throw by the National hurler. Straw Hat collected four hits and a sacrifice fly for three runs in their fifth inning at bats.

Sanchez paced the Straw Hat outfit's six-hit attack with two hits in four trips to the plate. Sanchez was the only batter to collect two hits in the game.

The Northwest Dodgers lost a tough one-run decision by walking four consecutive batters in the seventh stanza. Johnny Rodriguez drew the fourth walk of the frame to give D.A.V. the victory.

Rodriguez was the winning pitcher for D.A.V. He had relieved Shane Turner in the seventh inning.

Ganigan knocks out Garcia in 8th

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Unbeaten Andy Ganigan of Honolulu, Hawaii, knocked out Juan Garcia of Santiago, Chile at 2:10 of the eighth round at the Olympic Auditorium Thursday night.

Referee Larry Rosadilla stopped the bout after Ganigan scored his third knockdown of the scheduled 10-round bout and Garcia seemed to be helpless as Ganigan landed several hard punches.

Ganigan, a southpaw, weighed 135 pounds. Garcia scaled 136 pounds.

Ganigan knocked Garcia down in the third and fifth rounds with punches to the body. Garcia, however, made it a competitive fight as he often carried the bout.

In the seventh round, the ringside physician examined Garcia's left eye and allowed the bout to continue.

Ganigan raised his record to 18-0 with 17 knockouts. He is rated fifth among the world's lightweights by the World Boxing Council.

Garcia dropped to 18-5-2 with seven knockouts.

Rene Silva, 127 pounds, of Leon, Nicaragua, knocked out Manuel Castellanos, 126 pounds, of Jalisco, Mex., in 1:30 of the third round in the second 10-round bout of the evening.

Referee Ken Davis stopped the bout without counting Castellanos out following a knockdown by Silva.

Silva, a southpaw raised his record to 20-4-1 with 12 knockouts. Castellanos dropped to 6-2-1.

Aztecs win on shutout

VANCOUVER (AP) — Bill Mishalow's shutout goaltending and goals by George Best and Miro Rys led the Los Angeles Aztecs to a 2-0 North American Soccer League victory over the Vancouver Whitecaps Thursday.

Mishalow, the Aztecs' backup goalkeeper, made 11 saves, including several difficult ones in the first half.

Best's indirect free kick in the first half put Los Angeles ahead 1-0 and Rys slipped through a tiring Vancouver defense to score an insurance goal with just 65 seconds left.

L. Perris a busy place

Boating activity at the Southland's inland waterways is running at a record high, according to a survey compiled by the Southern California Marine Association.

The figures may come as a surprise considering the amount of attention devoted to the drought in the West. However, the Southland waterways all are well filled and providing excellent recreational opportunities, the report notes.

Lake Perris, located approximately 10 miles from Riverside, reports attendance is up nearly 50 per cent over 1976, thanks to the completion of 1,200 new parking spaces and a 250-place campground.

Perris has 1870 water acres at the moment, with a maximum of 2,100. Ranger Neeley estimates 400-500 boats using Perris daily.

Lake Pyramid, located just off Highway 5 approximately 70 miles north of Los Angeles, reports attendance is running ahead of last year. There are a full complement of 180 boats in the water on weekends.

Nearby Castiac also reports activity is high. It offers 30 miles of shoreline for boating, camping, riding, hiking, fishing and water skiing. There is also a 120-acre area for sailboats and swimming.

LAKE PERRIS BOOMING — Lake Perris, near Riverside, reports activity is up 50 percent over 1976, due in part to completion of new parking facilities. The lake has 10 boat-launching lanes.

Camp Pendleton to offer permits

Access to the U.S. Marine Corps Base at Camp Pendleton for the purpose of weekend civilian hunting during the general deer season will be permitted this year for the first time since 1975 when hunting was cancelled because of a fire.

Nearly 100 hunters who had received permits from the base for the 1975 hunt will be given the opportunity of hunting this year. Additionally, the California Department of Fish and Game will conduct a drawing of access permits for 150 more hunters who will be assigned a weekend during the Sept. 24-Nov. 6 season.

Deer hunting will be permitted only on weekends at Camp Pendleton. To apply applicants must submit their names on a postcard together with hunting license numbers and addresses. As many as, but no more than, two names may be included on the card. Hunters must be 16 years of age or older.

Postcards should be sent to the Department of Fish and Game, License Office, Attn: Camp Pendleton Access, 1416 Ninth St., Sacramento, CA 95814. Deadline for entries in Sacramento is 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 26.

Sportfishers 'day' slated

Saturday, August 13 has been set for this year's annual "SAC Day", according to Sportfishing Association of California (SAC) president William A. Nott.

Formed in May 1972, the group is designed to unite the ocean sportfishing industry into a cohesive group which could take steps to help conserve and improve California ocean sport angling. SAC uses funds collected through its annual SAC Day to finance its operations.

Nott says a large public angler turnout is hoped for on August 13 at SAC landings on the Southland coast. Money raised goes towards a variety of SAC projects, including stocking programs, artificial reefs, and conservation measures designed to protect swordfish and anchovies from commercial industry.

All SAC member landings will contribute their day's gross on August 13 to SAC. There are 24 such landings in the Southland.

Dove, pigeon seasons set

The California Fish and Game Commission meeting in Santa Barbara recently adopted dove and pigeon hunting regulations for 1977 that are virtually unchanged from those for 1976.

Included were a split 46-day season for doves with a limit of 10 per day, 20 in possession after opening day, and straight pigeon seasons in the northern and southern areas of 16 days, each with a bag and possession limit of six birds.

Dove hunting season will open Sept. 1 and run through Sept. 30, reopen Nov. 19 and continue through Dec. 4 statewide. White-winged doves, as is generally the rule, will be allowed in the bag only in the counties of Imperial, Riverside and San Bernardino.

Dates for band-tailed pigeons will be Oct. 1-16 in the counties of Butte, Del Norte, Glenn, Humboldt, Lassen, Mendocino, Modoc, Plumas, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Tehama and Trinity, and Dec. 10-25 in the balance of the state.

The commission also adopted a policy setting opening dates for hunting seasons on quail, chukars, grouse and turkeys and amended a policy for the opening of pheasant season.

Standard openings for seasons on trout, deer, doves and pheasants are provided for under existing policy.

Established policy opening dates are as follows:

QUAIL — Coastal season, north of San Francisco Bay, fourth Saturday in September; remainder of the state, fourth Saturday in October. Special mountain quail season, second Saturday in September.

CHUKAR — Statewide, fourth Saturday in October.

GROUSE — Second Saturday in September for sage, sierra and ruffed grouse.

TURKEYS — Fall season, first Saturday in November; spring season, first Saturday in April.

Upland game bird season dates for 1977-78 will be adopted by the commission Aug. 12 in San Francisco along with those for waterfowl.

Record Reviews

By DAVE MARSH

AVERAGE WHITE BAND & BEN E. KING: "Benny and Us" (Atlantic SD 19105).

It's always a pleasure to hear King, whose voice is one of the real treasures of popular music. And pairing him with AWB, the original and best of the white disco bands, hardly seemed a bad idea. But AWB's formula is constricting even on its own; their hard grooves don't give King much room to sing, although he has plenty of opportunity to vocalize. Had King dominated this record it might have been a masterpiece, but in fact he plays the supportive role, AWB the dominant. The exception is "A Star in the Ghetto," a fitting sequel to the Drifters' hits that began his career.

* * *

COUNTRY JOE AND THE FISH: "Reunion" (Fantasy F-9530).

You'd hardly notice they were missing, right? But this is the same group whose first album, "Electric Music for the Mind and Body," was perhaps the most blatantly psychedelic to come out of San Francisco in 1967. In the interim, while Country Joe McDonald principally engaged in political songmaking, the others drifted into obscurity. "Reunion" is a rather sad affair; there's no reason, not even greed, why such a mediocre collection of songs should have been released. And the remake of the LP's classic, "Not So Sweet Martha Lorraine," does an injustice to our memories. Unless it heralds a revival of hippie fashion, and I doubt that, this is perhaps the most pathetic record of the year.

* * *

"Lake" (Columbia PC 34763).

This debut album by an English quintet operates squarely in the Yes tradition, though not so blatantly as Starcastle, Columbia's other progressive rock contenders. The emphasis is appropriately heavy on keyboards — none of the instrumentalists is specifically credited, nor is the singer — with touches of guitar and various rhythms, swirling around in a pop-classical mulch. The greatest difference between Lake and its Yes-like predecessors is in the vocals, which simply aren't up to par. A minor exception is "On the Run," which opens the album with some acceptable if uninspired harmony rock.

* * *

EARTH QUAKE: "Leveled" (Beserkley PZ-34801).

As Sixties revivalists go, Earth Quake aren't bad, and their original songs here are an improvement on both their A&M debut LP six years ago, and their first for Beserkley. Vocalist John Doukas has limitations, but so did Mark Lindsay of Paul Revere and the Raiders, who seems to be his role model, if we are to judge from the inclusion of "Kicks," the Readers' big hit. Unfortunately, choosing a sporadically inspired mediocrity as a model is just the sort of thing which keeps bands like Earth Quake from interesting anyone beyond record collectors and diehards of the pre-psychedelic rock age. I'd be willing to go along with even that, though, if their version of "Kicks" was halfway as interesting as the original. It ain't.

* *

"Hargus 'Pig' Robbins" (Elektra 7E-1110).

Robbins is perhaps the most famous session pianist in Nashville, but most of this is just shopping center instrumental Muzak versions of C&W hits. The exception is the invigorating opener, "Diggin' In," a synthesizer-piano duet which is more-or-less Robbins' version of "Heat Wave." Good grief.

TOGETHER AGAIN

Myrna Loy and Pat O'Brien, who last appeared together in "Consolation Marriage" in 1931, pose in front of a picture from that movie at a news conference in Hollywood Wednesday where they announced that they will appear together in a forthcoming film, "The End."

Producer does spoof of Bogart

LOS ANGELES (AP) — TV producer Andrew J. Fenady recently published his first book, "The Man With Bogart's Face." It's a hard-boiled private eye novel set in the 1970s, but is not your usual gumshoe saga.

Its hero has a plastic surgeon redo his face, make him look like Humphrey Bogart. He then changes his name to Sam Marlow, buys a 1939 Plymouth and goes into the hard-boiled private eye business.

He hires a busty blonde secretary he calls Duchess and commences operating as Bogart might have in the old days, "when there were causes and flags and dames worth fighting for."

His card reads: "Sam Marlow, Private Investigator, I Don't Sleep."

In short, Fenady, now making a CBS movie called "The Hostage Heart," has written an affectionate spoof of detective works by such greats as Dashiell Hammett and Raymond Chandler, and such top gumshoe flicks as "The Maltese Falcon."

It all began about three years ago, he said, when he wrote the following paragraph:

"After the bandages were removed, the man with the Humphrey Bogart face slipped into a trench coat and a grey felt hat. The temperature in LA that July day was 92. There was no sign of rain."

"I put it in a drawer and almost forgot about it," said Fenady, 49, a native of Toledo, Ohio, who grew up immersed in detective classics in book and film form. "But it kept gnawing at me.

"I didn't know what do with it. But one day it struck me — I want to do a Valentine, an affectionate Valentine, not a parody, on all the great private eye novels and movies ever made.

"So that day I sat down and started writing," said the grinning author, a short, intense man who, clad in white shirt, blue pants in need of pressing and bowling shoes, didn't resemble your average cashmere-encased TV producer.

"It went on night and day. My secretary quit on me six times, my wife would come down at 3 a.m. and say, 'Andy, the human body cannot endure this, you're gonna die, get some sleep.'"

In 23 days, the novel was finished. The next step was to get a book agent, which he did, and then to convince a publisher a detective novel needn't be, well, like all the others.

He conceded some publishers told him they want their private eyeing done straight, with no spoofing around.

"Yeah, they've told me that," he said. "They've said, 'Look, Fenady, detective stuff, if it's funny, there's no market for it.' And maybe not, except there was a market for this one."

He said he's had network queries about "The Man With Bogart's Face," but he hopes to produce it himself as a theatrical movie. He also said his publisher, Henry Regnery Co. of Chicago, wants a sequel.

"In fact, they want a series of sequels to it," Fenady laughed, considering the prospect of more bogus Bogart. "But I don't know if I can survive any more of those 23-day sessions.

"I know my wife can't."

Tony Urbano marionettes star at Laguna Festival of Arts

The Tony Urbano marionettes are featured performers at the 42nd annual Festival of Arts at Laguna Beach. The festival continues through Aug. 28.

Performances of Urbano's sparkling musical revue, "Mediterranean Holiday," are held in the Puppet Theater on the festival grounds.

Entertainers Bob Hope, Phyllis Diller and Carol Channing stop the show in puppet form. The life-like characterizations and magnificently costumed supporting cast of "little people" are the results of many years of Urbano's creativity. Audiences will not only see caricature-like puppets of these performers, but will also hear their recorded voices, thanks to their cooperation with Urbano.

Also featured will be Mlle. Martine Montmartre, the act popularly referred to as "The Lady and the Lampost." This segment of the show draws special attention to Urbano's technical ability.

Urbano designs, sculpts and paints all the figures. He is assisted by a talented group of artists, each a specialist in one of the many phases of puppet production — wigs, costumes, lighting and scenic design.

Urbano's career started at age 6 when he mounted his first marionette production. His parents, teachers and schoolmates were his first appreciative audiences. Except for time out to serve in the U.S. Army, he has been in the puppet business ever since.

Urbano's presentations are acclaimed not only for their imaginative scripts, clever touches and colorful "cast members," but also for their striking costumes.

His marionettes have appeared on such television programs as the Dean Martin Show, Rowan and Martin Laugh-In, Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour, Red Skelton Show and the Pearl Bailey Special. His popular CBS television show, "Dusty's Treehouse," has consistently won Emmy Awards for superb characterizations and entertainment value; and 1976 saw his debut as a television producer with the highly rated "Stanley Spider Special."

The puppets have performed for the San Diego Centennial; for the California Mid-Winter Fair in Calexico; in the Soviet Union as part of the cultural exchange program sponsored by the State Department; with the San Francisco Opera and the Oakland Symphony; at Hollywood Bowl, Universal Studios, Busch Gardens, Knott's Berry Farm and the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Favorite of Festival of Arts visitors for the past five years, these versatile puppets have also appeared in night clubs in such places as Las Vegas and Lake Tahoe.

This summer's production will entertain both children and adults with lavish settings and costumes; special lighting effects and stereo sound of the lively musical, "Mediterranean Holiday."

Showtimes are 1:30, 3, 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. on weekdays; 1:30, 3, 4:30, 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Hollywood to salute own stamp

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hollywood is tossing a party to celebrate issuance of a postage stamp honoring the 50th anniversary of sound movies.

Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association, will serve as general chairman of a luncheon at the Hollywood Palladium Oct. 6. Film makers who pioneered the development of sound will be honored.

Oct. 6 is the anniversary of the opening of "The Jazz Singer," the first feature with synchronized sound. Ceremonies will be held at television station KTLA, present occupant of the studio where Warner Bros. filmed "The Jazz Singer" with Al Jolson.

Lily Tomlin signs for two films

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lily Tomlin, film maker. That will be the comedienne's new title under a contract just signed with Universal Pictures.

The contract calls for Miss Tomlin to write, produce and star in two pictures over a three-year period.

Vaughan, McRae set for Bowl

Singers Sarah Vaughan and Carmen McRae will join the Los Angeles Philharmonic in concerts at the Hollywood Bowl at 8:30 next Friday and Saturday nights.

Miss Vaughan and Miss McRae will sing, separately and together, numbers with which they have become closely associated in their sensational careers. Two conductors will be on the podium — Philharmonic assistant conductor Calvin Simmons, and Marty Paich, who will conduct for Miss Vaughan.

Top jazz instrumentalists to be featured in the concert include vibraphonist Bobby Hutcherson, guitarist Earl Klugh and violinist Noel Pointer.

Miss Vaughan, who has appeared with the Los Angeles Philharmonic many times both at Hollywood Bowl and at the Music Center, is one of the most versatile female singers in today's music world, at home in every type of music, from gospel to jazz, from semiclassical to contemporary. Although she began her career as a vocalist with the bands of Earl (Fatha) Hines, Billy Eckstine and John Kirby, Miss Vaughan's impact as a solo artist has taken her to the top of the field.

Miss McRae began performing as a band vocalist during the '40s with Count Basie, Mercer Ellington and others, and stepped out as a solo singer in the '50s. Since then she has been acclaimed for her appearances at America's top jazz clubs and festivals, enthusiastically received in tours of Europe, Japan and the Far East, and highly praised for a string of successful albums.

IT'S NO PICNIC

Joan Collins is attacked by a giant ant in American International's "The Empire of the Ants," opening citywide in Los Angeles Aug. 24. The picture tells the story of a group of people terrorized by the insects that grow to a huge size after feeding on atomic waste. The film is PG.

SHOWING AT SHOWCASE — Mickey Dolenz and Davy Jones will present their show, featuring the golden hits of the Monkees, in the Show-case Theater at Magic Mountain at 8 and 10 p.m. next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Alice Cooper droops

By STAN MIESES

Whatever has kept Alice Cooper afloat all these years seems to be drying up. Cooper's current American tour hit the Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale New York last week, and I found it so flimsy and shallow it's hard to believe that he ever made waves. He was as sad-looking as an empty swimming pool.

The new Cooper show is an informal "best of" compilation. All his hits are warmed over. Even his most noted stage gimmicks have been revised, but they come off flat, flat, flat.

If you've seen the guillotine routine once, that was plenty; even the first time around it must have looked awfully stagey. So were the dancing spiders and the robot Cyclops (from the "Welcome To My Nightmare" show, two years ago), the multi-media dazzle, the music, and the personality.

The show also features an unusual backdrop — a 30-foot-high TV set with an inset screen cut in strips to allow Cooper to jump in and out of the films into live action, and vice versa, something which he and his dancers did in perfect synchronization, over and over. Perhaps they felt they had to justify spending close to a half-million dollars on the production, basically for this one good gimmick.

But it's ironic that on film or in live action, Alice never quite fleshes out: he's perennially 2-D. All the rehashed snake jive, the perfunctory misogyny, the glorification of death, and the cement-mixing soundtrack that goes with it have, at least in this part of the country, lost their box-office magic. It's no secret that part of his camp has defected over to Kiss.

Alice's (and by the way, he is legally Alice Cooper now) calculated attempt at a new gimmick — sincerity — has resulted in a new hit single for him, "You and Me." But in performance, he ruthlessly threw around a limp-bodied woman as he sang this paean to working-class love, and it became gross parody.

MUSIC MAKERS — Passing Parade, a Southern California rock group, will give a concert in Cal Poly's outdoor concert bowl at 8:30 p.m. Aug. 13. Also on the card will be Air Castle.

Twilight Concert Series

Poly to offer music

Cal Poly will offer a concert by the Faculty Woodwind Quintet of the University of Redlands in the concert bowl at 8:30 p.m. Thursday as part of the Twilight Concert Series. Performing next Friday will be Mark Fossom and Jim Bogan's 12th Street Mini Band, and on Saturday there will be concerts by Passing Parade and Air Castle.

The quintet was assembled in 1975 to serve in a public relations capacity for the University of Redlands school of music. Its repertoire includes works from the traditional quintet literature as well as works representative of more recent stylistic activity. The group is presently preparing the album "American Music for Woodwind Quintet" to be released by Grenadilla Records in the fall.

Fossom, who opens Friday's concert, is described on his Takoma Records label as "a singer in the vein of James Taylor." 12th Street offers non-traditional Dixieland jazz.

Passing Parade is a California-based rock group featuring guitars, keyboards, congas, lead vocals and drums. The band uses a wide variety of musical styles ranging from easy-listening ballads to high-energy rock n' roll, including oldies-but-goodies, current top 40 hits and their own originals.

During the past four years the group has enjoyed long-term engagements in the San Gabriel Valley, including the Water Wheel and Caravan Inn, West Covina and the Carbon Copy, La Puente. In addition, the group has played at the Disneyland Hotel, the Sheraton-Universal Hotel, the Ambassador Hotel, Cal State Long Beach, Charley Brown's, Rosemead, and at Mawby's in Palm Springs. Parade is currently appearing nightly Wednesday through Sunday at Lloyd Hunter's Canyon Inn in the Azusa Canyon where it recently began its second consecutive year.

Air Castle is a rock band that specializes in original lyrics and sound.

Tickets are $1.50 for the Thursday and Friday night concerts and $1.75 for the Saturday concert. Children under 12 are admitted free. Everyone is encouraged to bring a blanket and picnic dinner.

Boone plans role in wheelchair

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Boone will play his next role either on crutches or in a wheelchair.

Boone was signed for a guest star role in "The Big Sleep," but broke his leg in an accident in Texas. His role of "The Man in Brown," is being altered to enable him to appear in a wheelchair or on crutches.

Fullerton CLO calls auditions

The Fullerton Civic Light Opera will hold auditions for "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" at the CLO building, 218 W. Commonwealth Ave., at the end of the month.

Dance tryouts will be held starting at 1 p.m. Aug. 28. Singing and reading auditions will be held at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 29 and 30. Auditioners are encouraged to sing something from the score. An accompanist will be provided.

Rehearsals will start Sept. 6. The play will be staged in Plummer Auditorium, Fullerton, Oct. 21-23 and 28-30 and Nov. 4 and 5.

The Meredith Willson musical will be directed by Jan Duncan. Janet Sanderson will do the choreography, and Benton Minor will serve as musical director and conductor.

007 fans demand novelty

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The thing about the James Bond movies is that you can't repeat yourself, and yet the audience demands similar ingredients. Writing them becomes a brainbreaking thing."

Richard Maibaum knows. He has coauthored eight of the 10 Bond movies (not including the maverick "Casino Royale"). The latest is on view throughout the nation this summer: "The Spy Who Loved Me," starring Roger Moore, Barbara Bach, Curt Jergens and 7-foot-2 Richard Kiel as Jaws, whose steel teeth are as lethal as a Sten gun.

Maibaum was a curious choice to become 007 laureate. He is about as British as a Coney Island red hot. Born in New York City, he attended New York University, graduated from the University of Iowa and came to Hollywood in 1936 after making a name for himself as playwright.

He worked on such scripts as "They Gave Him a Gun," "Stablemates," "I Wanted Wings," produced combat films for the Army during the war, returned to write and produce "The Great Gatsby" (Alan Ladd version), "The Big Clock," "No Man of Her Own," and so on.

Because he had made several films with Ladd, Maibaum was lured abroad. Ladd became partners with producer Irving Allen and Albert "Cubby" Broccoli in a series of films made abroad for tax reasons.

"'Cubby' gave me the Ian Fleming books to read in 1957 or 1958," Maibaum recalled. "He was thinking about filming them, and his partner, Irving Allen, didn't want to go along. He didn't like the Bond books. So Harry became partners with Harry Saltzman.

"I first wrote the script of 'Thunderball.' But because of a lawsuit against Fleming over the rights to 'Thunderball,' 'Dr. No' was filmed first. United Artists rather reluctantly advanced $600,000. The picture cost about $1 million, I believe."

And so the Bondomania began. Maibaum continued collaborating on all of the films except "Live and Let Die" and "You Only Live Twice," during which time he was contracted to MGM for other films.

The elements of a Bond script are rigid: larger-than-life heroes and villains, torture scenes, flip jokes, stunning women and "a pretense of seriousness." The script writers' chore becomes more difficult with each succeeding film, Maibaum remarked, because they are working almost entirely on their own.

NO REPEATS — Writer Richard Maibaum, who has co-authored eight of the 10 James Bond movies, says you can't repeat yourself in writing one of the adventure films. Maibaum's movies feature larger-than-life heroes, stunning women, evil villains and many jokes.

Chevvy takes local pair

Two local performers have been selected from the Young Americans to take part in a four-week promotional tour for Chevrolet.

Roger Castellano of Pomona and Lori Blackwell of La Verne are having a two-week rehearsal of the show, after which they will perform in such cities as Philadelphia, Atlanta, Cincinnati, Detroit, Kansas City, Houston and Las Vegas. Only the top performers of the popular singing group were chosen for the tour.

Castellano has performed for the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera in "The King and I" and "Amahl and the Night Visitors." He is a former member of the Claremont Boys Choir. He played in "Oliver!" at La Verne College when he was nine, and has appeared in numerous Valley Community Theater shows.

Miss Blackwell has performed in "Applause" and "Sugar" at the San Bernardino Civic Light Opera. For VCT she played in "Cinderella," "Oliver!" and "Inherit the Wind," and she played in "The Sound of Music" and "Bye Bye, Birdie" for Gallery Theater, Ontario.

Lap wilderness

Lapland, the largest wilderness in Western Europe, covers an area of more than 100,000 square miles of mountains, bogs and lakes.

'Equus' slated at Hartford

Peter Shaffer's Tony Award-winning drama, "Equus," will be presented at the Huntington Hartford Theater in Hollywood next Friday through Sept. 4. It played at the Hartford for 22 weeks last year.

Official opening night will be Aug. 16, following four low-priced preopening performances.

Produced by James A. Doolittle for the Southern California Theater Association, the production will star Anthony Hopkins as the tortured psychiatrist — Dr. Dysart — the part he introduced to American audiences on Broadway during the 1974-75 season. Hopkins will also direct the production which centers on the hair-raising crime committed by a 17-year-old boy in a riding stable in England. Starring in the role of the disturbed youth will be the new young actor, Thomas Hulce.

"The reason for this production," said Doolittle, "following the most successful engagement in the history of Los Angeles, is that we felt that 'Equus' is the one play that warrants re-viewing, particularly with a different cast and direction. We also believe that the Hartford, considered one of the finest legitimate theaters in the country, would best serve the city of Los Angeles if it was the home of an annual season of locally produced plays of high quality, giving more opportunity to the great number of gifted actors that live here. In the case of 'Equus' for example, all but one member of the company reside in Los Angeles."

Hopkins is directing "Equus," based on the brilliant original direction by John Dexter, and is working with Doolittle in all phases of production.

Lee signs for part in TV series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — International film star Christopher Lee has been signed as a guest star in a two-hour segment of ABC's "How the West Was Won."

Lee, a veteran of more than 130 movies, will play Grand Duke Dimiti, who leads a Russian delegation on a hunting expedition into Indian territory. He appeared in such films as "The Man With the Golden Gun," "The Three Musketeers" and "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes."

The new season's 10-episode, 20-hour series starring James Arness, placed first in the ratings last year during three initial telecasts.

Restaurateur Survey . . .

BAD MEAL? GRIPE NOW — NOT LATER

NEW YORK, N. Y. . . . Picture this: You're famished, and ready to enjoy a good restaurant meal when they bring out a charred steak, a cold baked potato and a wilted salad. It's the nightmare meal of your life. What do you do?

If you are like most people, you'd probably eat it and leave. But, according to a recent survey by American Express, the restaurant owner and his employees would respect you more if you complained, on-the-spot.

Customer complaints are preferable to unhappy customers leaving the premises vowing never to return.

American Express sent questionnaires to all of their restaurants in the United States that accept the card. The purpose of the survey was two-fold: to find out what restaurateurs respect most about their customers, and what patrons can do to help restaurant personnel provide them with better service.

Of the restaurant owners and managers who responded to the questionnaire, 40 percent volunteered that they respected patrons more who "beef" about poor service to their staff members over customers who do not.

However, the passive customers seem to outnumber the assertive ones. "Our biggest problem occurs when customers leave dissatisfied and silent," was the response of one restaurant owner in Cedar Knolls, New Jersey.

The primary benefits restaurateurs can derive from customers "getting things off their chests" is an opportunity to correct errors and improve customer relations which can lead to increased business. Said a restaurant owner in Lubbock, Texas, "We appreciate customers who complain so we can take immediate corrective action."

NEED FOR RESPECT, TOLERANCE

The study also revealed that the second major concern shared by restaurant employees is the need for a more respectful attitude from many of their customers. As one survey respondent from a restaurant in Newport, Rhode Island, noted: "I most respect a customer who respects me. Too often patrons forget that we are human beings!"

Restaurant owners and personnel listed increased tolerance and understanding from patrons during times of stress as the third trait that would make their jobs easier. "The entire evening should not be judged by one mistake," said a restaurant manager from Michigan City, Indiana. "We ask that customers remember that employees are human and from time to time make errors."

Based on the findings of the survey, American Express offers eight important tips to remember the next time you dine out.

EIGHT COMMANDMENTS TO GOOD DINING

—Complain on the spot — Management wants you to leave as a contented customer.

—Be loyal — Customer faithfulness may lead to that special table with a view.

—Request separate checks — There's less confusion when separate checks are requested before ordering a meal rather than afterwards.

—Be friendly — A cheerful attitude can improve everyone's disposition, ease problem-solving.

—Control kids — Parents love them, but they may distract restaurant employees and patrons if unruly and boisterous.

—Drink intelligently — Overindulgence might lead to improper modes of behavior.

—Patience, patience — A virtue that will improve digestion rather than hinder it when restaurants are crowded and the service slow.

—Compliment on the spot — You like them, so do the people who run restaurants.

Joyce Brothers

Different viewpoint

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My wife and I worry when we see how our children are raising their kids. We were willing to sacrifice for our children. Our daughter-in-law is going back to work and neither she nor our son feels this is wrong. They think they can go on living the way they did before they started raising a family. I don't like to interfere but if things get too out of hand, I will, because I can't help myself. I'd like to send an anonymous letter reminding my son and his wife of their responsibilities. My wife says to wait. What's your view? — P.S.

DEAR P.S.: Your wife is right. I'd not only wait. I wouldn't ever send it. It wouldn't be anonymous even though you didn't sign it. I'm sure your son knows you well enough to recognize your style of writing as well as your views. I believe you owe him the respect of expressing your feelings openly and directly to him, if you're going to express them at all.

Younger parents are generally more self-oriented than parents in earlier generations but this isn't all bad. Most parents today don't seem as willing to make sacrifices, but they don't expect as much from their children in later years.

In the past, many parents who practically sacrificed their lives for their children expected a great deal in return. The result often was guilt on the children's part and bitterness and resentment from the parents. Each person has only one life to live and he or she should have the right to fulfill his or her own potential. In the long run, this may make both the child and the parent happier and better able to give time and love.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I just got a new job and will have to do a lot of air travel. This is a great hardship because I loathe flying. I know it's unreasonable and I can't pinpoint the cause. I've always had very smooth flight, but I've always been frightened. If I could find out why I'm afraid, I might get over it. Why should I be afraid of planes? — D.E.

DEAR D.E.: Millions of Americans suffer from varying degrees of fear of flying. The basis of your fear, like most fears, probably began in your early childhood. In order not to be afraid, a child has to learn to trust. The infant's first social achievement is a willingness to let his mother out of his sight without undue anxiety or rage, because he's certain she will return.

When something goes wrong, when the child doesn't have enough in his world that is predictable and dependable, he may not learn to trust. He may learn that he can't really trust anyone but himself because others will fail him. This carries over into adult life with a fear of letting others take control. Allowing others to take full responsibility for our lives, as in flying, with a pilot in control evokes a certain amount of tension in most people, but for some it is almost unbearable.

You learned to be afraid through past experiences and you can learn through new experiences to overcome your fears. The best way to learn is the same way you learned to walk — a step at a time. Gradually, you'll learn that it's quite safe, under certain specific circumstances to let the pilot take change of your life.

NEW YORK (NEA) — Look, says Rosa Puleo-Szule, my name was good enough all the years I was just Rosa Puleo, so when I got married I decided to keep it.

And just because she designs for Annique, the young, successful, moderately-priced lounge-wear line ($15 to $50), don't expect her to recant any of her feminist beliefs.

You'll find them right there in her gowns and robes; scallops, ruffles, lace and applique details, and skirts that have the sweep of a loretta Young entrance.

Now, hold it. Don't say that's all contradictory to the feminist movement unless you want to be pleasantly and volubly talked out of it by Puleo-Szule, who admits she likes to talk.

"Many more younger women are out working today," she says, "and during the day it's important for them to be dressed as professionals so they're judged on their abilities, not the low cut of their dress.

"Okay, that's during the day. At night, they enjoy putting on something very feminine, something that doesn't hide the fact they're women."

In fact, she says, if you look deep enough, you may find they're women during the day, too.

"If I have a sexy red bra and bikini on under a dignified black suit, that's a little game I do for me."

Since she brought it up, we asked the dark, attractive Puleo-Szule just what she was wearing this day under her cotton, two-piece, blouson outfit, and she laughed and said, "I'm wearing a slip. I can remember five or six years ago in my early 20s I hardly owned a slip. I was in jeans. But all these things have started to be delicious to me, and," she went on, hoping to change the subject . . .

Just a slip, we persisted?

"Well, I'm also wearing an imported Italian lace bra and bikini, the thing I did for me this morning to lift my spirits."

She's comfortable in them, the way the woman who buys Annique's slip gown with spaghetti straps and reembroidered net for $18, would be comfortable in that.

"The woman wearing that garment is secure because we're an ultra feminine line and she's a woman who's absolutely positive she wants to be a woman. She probably feels comfortable sleeping in nothing, too, or a big old shirt, in addition to this."

She likes the more fitted silhouette of the line, although, Puleo-Szule says, "Our fit is full. We accommodate a large range of women. We cut from petite (6, 8, 10), medium (12, 14) to large (14, 16) and in an accommodating garment, that could mean going up to an 18."

Probably this woman "is part of that baby boom group who's now near 30, maybe married and starting a family," she continues, "so she's no longer comfortable making breakfast in a very revealing gown. But she doesn't want to throw a basic dumb wrap robe over a very contemporary nightgown, so she buys one of ours which work specifically with one or two of our gowns but aren't sold as sets."

Some pretty robe, from $25 to $32, which, if the woman bought it herself is most likely ivory, taupe, peach, silver — anything but black, which women don't buy for themselves.

"A woman sees herself in soft colors, which are very big for fall, incidentally. Black is considered racy and usually is bought for a woman by a man.

"In fact" she continues, "I know one young single woman who said she went to sleep in a black garment one night and had to get up and change because she felt out of place in it by herself."

If it was one of Annique's, could be she felt bad, too, that no one could enjoy the way the detailing was carried clear around to the back, something Ms. Puleo-Szule, is adamant about.

"I'm a resident critic at Pratt and I always insist that my students give me sketches that have a back view, too, because sometimes that can be more important than the front.

"We're always dealing with the female anatomy," she says. "Women have breasts, they're always there, and you can't play with the front of a garment as much as you can the back. That's a very graceful part of the female anatomy which you can show with a deep V, or a halter."

No matter what you do with it, just make sure you do something because, she says, "The back should not be overlooked."

Overseen, maybe, but not overlooked.

National president installed

In a colorful ceremony filled with Hawaiian tradition, Piilani Desha of Hilo, Hawaii was installed as national president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., at Louisville, Ky.

The installation brought to a close the four-day annual meeting at which the 4,000 delegates called for the women's movement to unify itself behind the Equal Rights Amendment. They urged the amendment supporters across the nation to attend the International Women's Year national conference in Houston, Nov. 18-24.

Mrs. Desha leads the BPW organization of 170,000 working women in the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands into its 57th year. Founded in 1919, it is the largest and oldest organization of its kind and has supported the Equal Rights Amendment since the early 1950s.

Out of sun

Sun-induced aging begins early in life, according to the author of "Ageless Aging." Studies have shown that four out of five teen-agers have sun-damaged skin and that the amount of damage increases steadily with age and exposure, even without actual sunburn. To retard aging of skin, the author, Ruth Winter, recommends keeping out of the sun as much as possible. The sun's rays are strongest between noon and three o'clock, she states.

BPW schedules meeting

Members of Montclair Heights Business and Professional Women's Club will finalize plans for the fun and fund program to be held in September when the group meets at 8 p.m., Thursday, at Gallup Realty, 8990 Benson Ave., Suite D, Montclair.

Proceeds from the fund-raising event will be used for a scholarship, sending 10 students to a youth seminar and cosponsoring, along with American Legion Auxiliary 112, the sending of a Montclair High School student to Girls State seminar.

Part of Holland lies below sea level, and much of the low land is marshy and damp.

Long ago, the Dutch found that wooden shoes were perfect for walking in the damp ground. They kept their feet drier than leather shoes, which were soon ruined by the dampness.

Today, most Hollanders wear shoes similar to those we wear. Only in a few villages do people still wear the traditional wooden shoes, called klompen (say KLAHM pen). The wooden shoes are a bit noisy, but they are useful for working in wet fields. At a farmhouse door, you might see neat rows of wooden shoes on the doorstep. The Dutch leave them outside and go about the house in their stocking feet.

Holland's official name is Kingdom of The Netherlands. The name Netherlands literally means "low-lands" in the Dutch language. The name "Holland" comes from two of Netherlands' provinces; North Holland and South Holland.

New talent art awards

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Painters James Hayward and Margit Omar of Venice, Calif., and sculptor John Okulick of San Pedro, Calif., have been given the 1977 New Talent Awards by the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

The three artists, who were chosen from 80 local candidates, were awarded $2,000 and the opportunity to present an example of their work to the museum some time in the next six years, museum officials said. This year's awards bring to 39 the number of artists whose works have been displayed through the program.

Singer Tony Orlando shattered by deaths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Tony Orlando, confused and emotionally shattered, is being treated at a private hospital for stress brought on by the deaths of his sister and his pal Freddie Prinze, says a friend of Orlando.

"I was fortunate enough to get him where he is now without anyone knowing," said Orlando's press agent, Frank Lieberman, on Wednesday. "He is physically and emotionally exhausted. He's under a doctor's care in a hospital outside Los Angeles. His wife is with him."

Orlando surprised the entertainment world last month by announcing he was quitting. Lieberman said many pressures led to the decision.

"It's like a balloon," he said. "You can fill it up and fill it up and finally it pops."

When the balloon popped for Orlando, he was working the summer theater circuit. On July 23, he was a little late coming onstage at Cohasset, Mass.

When he did appear, he told a stunned audience that he was "quitting show business in the name of Jesus Christ."

"All the shows I do from now on will be with a guitar beside a hospital bed," he said.

Orlando also canceled a booking at the Warwick, R.I., Music Theater.

Buster Bonoff, owner of the theater, said he planned to sue the singer for the $200,000 in advance tickets he had to refund.

"We're probably not going to end up with anything," Bonoff said, "because the reason for his quitting is going to be that he was temporarily insane, or a nervous breakdown, or something. I can see it coming."

In early 1976, Orlando's sister, Rhonda Marie, died. She had been mentally retarded and stricken with cerebral palsy, and Orlando had cared for her since she was a year old.

His TV show was canceled in December. A month later, his personal world was shattered by the suicide of comedian Freddie Prinze, who, like Orlando, had known the opposite worlds of New York's Hell's Kitchen and glamorous Hollywood.

No other '77 car gives you all the features the '77 Audi 100LS gives you.

That's the truth. Because if you wanted to spend twice as much, you still wouldn't be able to get our combination of features. Only the 1977 Audi 100LS has them.

- CIS Fuel Injection (for optimum combustion)
- Front-wheel drive (for greater tracking stability)
- Rack-and-pinion steering (for better response)
- Dual diagonal brakes combined with negative steering roll radius (to help maintain directional stability in case of a front-tire blowout)
- Torsion crank rear axle (for a smooth ride).

So if you want to drive a car that gives you what no other car can, come in to see your local Audi dealer. It'll be a unique experience.
